50 Miles, 10 Cents.
These Dumping Russians.
Cry-Baby Bandits.
Welcome to Einstein.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SOME VERY important news about a new engine comes from London. Operated by gas, generated from coke, this engine drove a truck weighing one ton, with 500 pounds of passengers, 50 miles at more than 20 miles an hour, for a total cost of 10 cents.

That is not pleasant news for railroads, already meeting competition from automobile trucks, that can't run 50 miles for 10 cents.

RUSSIANS ARE now accused of sending us "gas generator" anthracite coal for one dollar a ton less than it costs to produce. That probably is guess work. We don't know what it costs Russia to produce coal.

IT IS EXTRAORDINARY what men and industries can do under pressure. For instance, C. C. Gibson, president of the Mullins Manufacturing Company, of Salem, O., gives these interesting facts:

His factory makes parts for automobiles.

A few years ago, it sold limousine doors of steel for nine dollars each. When a salesman took a contract for those doors at eight dollars, he was told it was absolutely impossible to meet that price.

THE SAME FACTORY sells a better door of the same kind now for one dollar and four cents, and makes a profit, although the making involves six operations.

Perhaps Russia has learned some things that we haven't learned.

THREE YOUNG MEN, christened by reporters "the cry-baby bandits," were to have died in New York's electric chair last night. Governor Roosevelt ordered 24 hours' delay. They murdered Charles Bauer, while robbing his drug store, nearly a year ago.

IN THIS country, justice waits too long. In England, the three young men who committed a murder in February would have been hanged in March, or sooner.

Our electric chair gives young criminals a chance to "show off," display their "nerve" and it corrects nothing.

Life imprisonment at hard work, with absbolute certainty that it would be LIFE imprisonment, plus the hard work, would discourage murder. Robbery that ends in murder is based on serious objection to working hard.

PROF. EINSTEIN, arriving in America, got a noisy reception and didn't like it. His friends are mathematics, astronomy, abstract thought. They don't yell, or push.

Reporters found it difficult to question Einstein, knowing well that only six men in the world could understand his answers to important questions, and probably no newspaper man is included in the six.

THE LEARNED professor, supposed to supplant Newton, says the law of gravitation doesn't act everywhere. Also, straight lines do meet, and "the infinite universe" is NOT infinite. It is all made of curves, and so comes back to the place whence it started. At least, that is how it sounds to ignorance, which asks Prof. Einstein:

"If the universe isn't infinite, what is located outside of its boundaries? And if, as you say, there was a point in past history when time actually began, how do you explain that?"

Prof. Einstein says:

"I explain it perfectly, but you can't understand the explanation."

What can you reply to that?

In any case, Einstein is a gigantic mathematical genius. No doubt about that, and he is most welcome.

From New York he goes to the Pacific Coast, where an American, Prof. Millikan, discovered the cosmic ray, another puzzle.

The professor will learn that this country is quite a "continuum," the new word for the infinite ether.

IF UNEMPLOYMENT conditions are as bad as reported in many parts of the country, it is the duty of the country to feed if it can't employ those that lack food, be they many or few.

A job of this kind should be undertaken by the government, and the best agency for distribution of food and organization of relief would be the Army and Navy.

Such work done by the Navy during the war, on occasions of accidental disaster, was done admirably.

THE TASK is too big for any private benevolent agency, no matter how benevolent or well managed, whether it be the Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A., Red Cross or anything else.

The Army and Navy know how to buy food, clothing, blankets and distribute them, getting the greatest value for money spent.

The problem is too big for little citizen committees or benevolent societies, with their necessarily heavy overhead, uneven and often unconsciously biased distribution.

A national problem calls for national action.

President Reported Preparing New Blast; G. O. P. Chiefs Ask End to Criticism

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Aroused by reports that President Hoover is contemplating still further criticism of Congress for the manner in which it has dealt with his recommendations, a number of leading Republican Senators caused word to be conveyed to the White House today that if there is any repetition of last Tuesday's statement, Mr. Hoover cannot expect to have Republican senators rise to his defense when attacked by Democrats.

The President's accusation on Tuesday of "playing politics with human misery" and aiming at "treasury raiding," stirred up such a party row and so much resentment on the part of Republican leaders in the Senate that they sat quietly by for three days and let Democratic assaults on the President go unanswered.

SENATORS RUFFLED

The ruffled senatorial feelings are understood to have been portrayed to the President today by Vice President Curtis. He arrived at the White House some time before the regular Friday cabinet meeting and conferred with Mr. Hoover. Earlier he had been consulted by a number of Republican senators.

The activity of the Vice President followed a meeting last night in which 17 leading Republican Senators participated. Among them were such figures as Watson, of Indiana, the Senate leader; Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican National Committee; Morrow and Kean, of New

CAROL PAYS MAGDA, ZIZI $400,000

Each Given Chateau, While Princess Helen Will Be Sent to Villa in Paris

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—For $400,000 in cash and the gift of two chateaux, King Carol II, of Rumania, has "wiped the slate clean" of his early love affairs and settled completely with the two women who played such a prominent part in his life before he became monarch of his kingdom, it was learned exclusively by International News Service today.

Mme. Zizi Lambrino, his former morganatic wife, mother of a son born to Carol, and Mme. Alice Gheorghiu Lupescu, the titian-haired beauty for whom he renounced his rights to the Rumanian throne, have both been "bought off" and promised in return to abandon all claims in the future to King Carol's affection or attention.

Mme. Lambrino received $320,000 and Mme. Lupescu $80,000, each also receiving a chateau in addition to the cash.

HELEN TO PARIS

With his old and troublesome "affaires de coeur" now settled to the satisfaction of all concerned, Carol now feels safe to establish his divorced wife, the former Princess Helen of Greece, mother of Michael, in Paris. In this connection, the Rumanian minister today received direct orders from his monarch to rent a villa for Princess Helen, and arrange suitable furnishing and servants.

She will arrive in Paris about the middle of January, accompanied by two ladies-in-waiting, to take up permanent residence here.

In order not to embarrass Carol by her presence at formal court functions during the Christmas season, it was learned that Princess Helen will leave Bucharest shortly to spend the holidays

Peace and Good Will

THE moving picture, "All Quiet On the Western Front," is as popular in Germany as it has been elsewhere.

It is regarded there and here as a vivid portrayal of the true conditions that prevail in war.

It is, of course, to that extent, propaganda against war; but not untruthful propaganda, not even prejudiced propaganda.

The supporters of Germany's ancient and abandoned war policy, however, are rioting against this film.

They declare that it promotes a supine peace, and will tend to make Germany submit to the humiliating and oppressive, and even destructive conditions of the Versailles compact.

The ancient war party is wrong.

Germany needs peace and not war.

Another war would destroy Germany.

Another decade of peace will restore Germany's power and prestige.

The provisions of the Versailles Treaty are outrageous, inhuman. They are calculated to create war.

But they were framed by the enemies of Germany in the hope that the war which they might precipitate would reduce Germany definitely and permanently to subjection.

GERMANY should not favor the policies of her enemies.

At this time "discretion is the better part of valor."

Germany should not allow herself to be forced into war either by those without her boundaries who are hostile to her, or by those within her confines who mean well but think badly.

Ludendorf has said that if Germany were forced into war within the next few years, she would be defeated and all her allies with her. This is probably true.

France and her allies have the men, the money and the munitions.

For Germany to precipitate or to permit a war when France has so overwhelmingly the upper hand would be the height of folly, of which only the loud-talking, shallow-thinking war party in Germany would be capable.

Peace will save Germany.

Peace will eventually correct the outrageous and oppressive conditions of the Versailles Treaty.

Peace abates passions, promotes justice, and will make readjustment possible.

AMERICAN influence will probably be exerted in favor of readjustment, because the Versailles Treaty violated every principle for which America went into the war—every armistice pledge which America made to the vanquished nations.

France will want her last pound of flesh, of course. France will be supremely selfish. That is her nature.

But the overwhelming sentiment of the world, the innate sense of justice of the human race, will compel some modification of the brutal injustice of the Versailles compact.

"Peace on earth and good will" AMONG men will mean salvation not only to Germany but to all nations.

Any agency which tends to promote peace should be approved and encouraged and protected by wise, conscientious and far-seeing government.

PROSECUTOR AROUSED BY JURORS

Cases Ignored Will Be Submitted at Next Term Of Court, Judge Approves

A motion for permission to re-present the election fraud case of the Fifteenth District of the Sixth Ward to the January grand jury, after the present grand jury failed to indict the board, was granted today to District Attorney Andrew Park by Judge George V. Moore.

Park, angered by the failure of the jury to indict the board, charged the jurors with leniency, and declared earlier that he would ask the court for permission to present the case again.

JURORS 'LENIENT'

With the failure of the grand jury to indict, Park refused to present three other cases, declaring that the jurors were too lenient. He will also ask the court for permission to present these cases to the next grand jury.

The grand jury returned a true bill against the board of the Twenty-first District of the Fourth Ward. Indictments, charging conspiracy, fraud and negligence in connection with the May primaries, were returned against Max Adler, judge; John E. Casey and Pat Higgins, inspectors, and Joseph B. Kelley and Milton Cohen, clerks.

HAS STRONG CASE

The district attorney declared the Sixth Ward case was strong. The officers of the board are Robert Drzewiecki, judge; Stanley Zbikowski and Frank Skilo, inspectors, and Joseph Bentz and Frank Szosznorek, clerks.

The five cases grew out of the report of the special recount board made to the district attorney, in which 62 discrepancies were cited. Of the 62 cases, Park's committee found five cases in which the violations were serious enough to prosecute.

PRIEST TO QUIT RADIO TALKS

Rather than submit to censorship imposed on his criticisms of the theater and motion pictures by Westinghouse Radio Station KDKA, the Rev. Dr. James M. Delaner, well-known priest, announced today that he would "stay off the air."

Father Delaney, giving a series of talks, was halted from presenting his scheduled address December 11 and the same address yesterday.

KDKA officials, in asking to censor the script, maintained that the talks were to be on "worthwhile plays and pictures" and that he was to ignore those he could not commend. Father Delaney, confirming this, said he discovered after a few of the talks that such

Troops Rise In Spanish Revolt

MADRID, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A military revolution was started in Spain today on the heels of widespread labor troubles which have continued for several weeks.

The seething political situation boiled over at Jaca, near the French frontier, where 3,000 infantrymen and artillerymen opened fire on the town.

When the news reached military headquarters at Madrid troop trains were ordered to converge upon Jaca in an effort to suppress the rebellion.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Two armed men held up Mrs. C. F. Zittel and several other persons in the Zittel apartment, Riverside drive, today, police headquarters was informed. Unofficial reports said $100,000 in money and jewelry was stolen.

VOTE PLEDGED ON TOWN HALL

The Town Hall question is going to be settled "henceforth and forever" the first of the week, probably Monday morning. County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong today said:

"We will meet the first of the week, probably Monday morning, to wind up the Town Hall matter."

Armstrong was asked:

"Does that mean that you are ready to vote on the question?"

The Commissioner replied:

"I have been ready to vote for some time and Mr. Babcock tells me he is ready also."

The meeting is not going to be any open and shut matter, however, for Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said yesterday he was going to have something to say and some questions to ask. However, it would appear reasonably certain that before another week rolls around the Town Hall will either be assured or some action taken to close the question.

Immediate action to aid employment was urged today by Councilman Harry A. Little.

He urged that if the hall cannot be located on Monument Hill or some other tax-exempt site, the proposed site in the Anderson street district should be purchased.

Lindsey's Defense Likens Self to Prophet Amon

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Reaching back into Hebrew history as well as into recent annals of the Episcopal church, former Judge Ben B. Lindsey was prepared to use two precedents this afternoon to answer a charge of disorderly conduct based on his interruption of Bishop William T. Manning in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine last Sunday.

He planned to cite the case of the Prophet Amon, who appeared in the king's chapel at Bethel, the northern kingdom, and interrupted the high priest, Anaziah, to proclaim the injustices of the nobles.

Amon was ejected from the chapel, somewhat as Lindsey was thrown out of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, then he wrote his immortal prophecy.

The judge also relied on an incident in the church of the Rev. Percy Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension in this city. Mr. Grant eulogized the late Theodore Roosevelt from the pulpit. A man jumped up and objected. Grant invited the man to have his say, after which the pastor repeated his eulogy and the man left the church.

Counsel for Lindsey said Episcopal clergymen versed in canon law assured him there was nothing in Episcopal laws or regulations to forbid a man to answer a charge from the pulpit.

With Bishop Manning on the stand the defendants hoped to prove he had sufficient provocation for speaking out in answer to the bishop's attack upon his character.

Dorothy Arnold Gone Twenty Years Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—Today marked the twentieth anniversary of the mysterious disappearance of Dorothy Arnold, daughter of a wealthy New York importer. An international search for the missing girl continued for years. The Arnold family, which spent a fortune in a vain attempt to locate their daughter, issued a statement several years ago which said they believed her dead.

LEWIS BOOMED FOR ROAD POST

Local political seers today were predicting that Samuel S. Lewis, former auditor general and state treasurer, or James F. Malone, former president of council and mayoralty candidate, would be named highway commissioner in Gov.-elect Pinchot's cabinet.

A neck and neck race is on between the two for the place, observers considered well informed declare. They expect Pinchot to make announcement of his choice within a week.

Lewis was mentioned as a possible Republican candidate for governor at the May primaries, but withdrew. He is now special deputy in the auditor general's department. He is said to have the backing of Joseph R. Grundy, former United States senator.

Raskob, Jr., Stenographer Married in Rectory

NORTH CHELMSFORD, Mass., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—John J. Raskob, Jr., of New York, and Miss Minerva Aaronson, of New Haven, were married today at the rectory of St. John's Catholic Church of North Chelmsford.

The ceremony was performed, according to the sexton of the church, Edmund D. Welch, by the Rev. Father Joseph A. Curtin, who left immediately afterwards for an unannounced destination.

Raskob is the son of John J. Raskob, chairman of the National Democratic Committee. He is 23 years old and is now employed here. The bride is 19 years old and until recently was a stenographer. Their engagement was announced last September.

The Rev. Father Joseph Heawes, curate of the church, refused to comment.

Considerable secrecy surrounded the wedding, and before it could be confirmed the couple had left on a train for Boston. Later it was learned, however, that the parents of the bridegroom and the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Aaronson, of New Haven, were present.

STATE GETS RIVER CASH IN BILL

Passage by Senate Clears Way for Emergency Public Works Measure

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Final passage by the Senate of the Emergency Public Works Bill opened the way today for Pennsylvania to receive a total of $7,025,886 in federal funds immediately for its highway construction program.

In addition the state is to receive at least $1,178,000 for river and harbor improvements, and $1,200,000 for dam construction and open channel work on the Ohio River.

The bill carrying appropriations of approximately $118,000,000 for federal-aid highway construction, rivers and harbors, Mississippi flood control, forestry and national park service, is designed as an emergency measure for the relief of unemployment conditions.

GOES TO CONFERENCE

Already passed by the lower House, it now goes to conference for adjustment of minor differences before being sent to the White House for President Hoover's signature.

Pennsylvania's share of the $80,000,000 item in the bill for federal-aid highway construction will be $3,512,943, according to an advance allocation of the fund made by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, but it will be possible for the state to double this amount by using it in matching federal aid funds unexpended and credited to the state in the federal treasury out of previous federal aid appropriations, as well as those to follow for the next year's national program.

DISTRIBUTION

Out of the $22,500,000 fund carried in the emergency bill for rivers and harbors works, a tentative allocation gives $680,000 for improvements on the project between Philadelphia and the sea; $98,000 for the Delaware River project from Philadelphia to Trenton, and $400,000 for the Schuylkill River. Of the $1,200,000 suggested for the Ohio River, $800,000 will be used for dam construction and $400,000 for open-channel work.

Pennsylvania now has a total of $5,367,086 to its credit in the treasury here, representing unexpended balance of federal aid funds which the state has not taken up through the dollar-for-dollar matching requirements.

PLANE RUSHES AID TO DYING

The telegraph, telephone, teletype, radio and airplane were used today in an effort to send an oxygen tent from this city to save the lives of two pneumonia victims in a hospital at Pasadena, Cal.

The American Atmos Corporation, Wilkinsburg, received a telegram this morning from officials of the Pasadena Hospital requesting that an oxygen tent be sent by airplane.

An official of the Atmos firm called the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., with offices in the Oliver Building, asking for a plane. The request was flashed by telephone to Columbus, O., and thence by teletype to J. W. Brennan, eastern division traffic manager, on a business visit to Kansas City.

After a survey of weather conditions it was decided to send the apparatus by way of Pennsylvania Airlines from Bettis Field to Cleveland and there transfer it to the Transcontinental line. Weather conditions prevented sending it by the more direct Columbus route of the Transcontinental and Western Air route.

Slayer of Girl Given Reprieve

WHEATON, Ill., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—John Preston, 32, Chicago painter, under sentence to die in the electric chair early Friday morning, has been granted a stay of execution until January 8, 1931, by Judge John K. Newhall.

Hearing on an insanity petition filed by Preston's mother will be held in Circuit Court room here December 18. Preston, once known as a "Model Husband," was convicted of slaying a young woman stenographer. He will be brought here from Joliet prison for the insanity hearing.

Driver Faces New Charges Over Hitting Children

Frank Kubiszewski, 35, of Niagara street, who yesterday was acquitted of murder, then pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter, in the death of William Harris, 5, of Lawn street, when he drove his car over a sidewalk, hitting Harris and four other children, today was held for court on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, and on four charges of aggravated assault and battery.

Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide squad, preferred the charges against Kubiszewski and the hearing was held in Central Police Court before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Frank Nowak, who was in the death car on the day of the fatality, was freed on a murder charge and is awaiting trial on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Charges of aggravated assault and battery have been entered against him by Ferris. His attorney, Louis Little, is said to have promised to have Nowak in court this morning. He did not appear and his arrest was ordered by Rothenberg on information by Ferris.

Kubiszewski was given the maximum penalty of three years in the workhouse and $1,000 fine on the manslaughter plea.

Jersey; Hastings, of Delaware; McNary, of Oregon, and Reed, of Pennsylvania.

CALLS PRESIDENT

Following the meeting, Watson informed the President over the telephone of the feelings and attitude of the Senate generally and the G. O. P. "regulars" particularly.

This unprecented action, at least without precedent in recent Republican administrations, was taken after President Hoover's vaunted "big stick" methods with Congress had failed again to prevent the Senate from scrapping his emergency relief program and writing its own measures.

HOOVER GIVEN EDICT

Watson called the White House from the conference room, got the President on the phone, and with the other senators listening to the Watson end of the conversation, told the Chief Executive there must be a better understanding between the White House and his party representatives in the Senate. Watson made the call at the direction of his associates.

The President, according to senatorial version of the conversation, also was asked to show more courtesy to congressional leaders by keeping them informed as to when and where he would issue public statements.

UNUSUAL REVOLT

What these extraordinary events portend with relation to Mr. Hoover's political future—particularly in 1932—remains to be seen. But the fact is undeniable that there exists on the part of Senate Republicans a revolt against the President of unusual and significant proportions.

The open feud between the White House and Congress was further accentuated yesterday when the Senate, before passing the $110,000,000 bill to relieve unemployment by speeding public works, amended it to strip the President of power to spend the fund as he saw fit.

ROBINSON AMENDMENT

This vital amendment, offered by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who, on Wednesday, broke with the Chief Executive over "one-way co-operation," was adopted without a record vote and without a single voice being raised against it.

The amended bill was passed after Senator Wagner, of New York, had assailed the President for "inaction and delay" in the economic crisis, and Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, convulsed the Senate with a speech ridiculing the lavish praise of the President in a testimonial to be published by a magazine.

BILLS ATTACKED

Meanwhile, administration leaders in the House today started a congressional war on all proposals to use treasury funds in gifts or loans to buy food for destitute farmers in the drought area. They call it a form of the European dole system.

Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, the Republican leader, took the floor to denounce all such measures, and he specifically attacked the action of the Senate in providing that a $60,000,000 loan to drought-stricken farmers to buy seed and feed could also be used to buy food.

JUDGE IGNORES MERCY PLEA

Ignoring a jury's recommendation for extreme mercy, Visiting Judge O. Clair Kent, of Crawford County, today gave Frank Rodi the extreme penalty for voluntary manslaughter.

The jury reached a verdict this morning after being out since 11:20 yesterday forenoon. Rodi was convicted of shooting James Hannan, 26, of 53 Congress street, in a quarrel over a card game in a poolroom at 1223 Fifth avenue last April 30. Hannan died in Mercy Hospital on May 30 from blood poisoning resulting from a gunshot wound in the thigh.

Rodi claimed self-defense, testifying that Hannan struck him in the face before he shot. In ignoring the jury's mercy plea, Judge Kent said:

"My observation is that there never was a time when the value of human life was so far below par as now. Even if the victim struck the defendant with his fist, that was no provocation for shooting him."

Rodi was sentenced to pay $50 fine and costs, and to solitary confinement in the Western Penitentiary from six to 12 years.

a policy was "nonsense and a waste of time."

"Pursuing such a policy was simply futile. I talked with Mr. Fleck, of KDKA, and asked him if other ministers were subject to such censorship. He said that they were not when they talked from their pulpits, but that when they talked from the station studios they submitted copies of their talks for censorship. I am convinced that theaters objected to my criticisms of them, and I know of at least one example."

P. A. Boyd, KDKA manager, said he hoped the lectures were not at an end. He added:

"I believe the talks are simply held up to await an agreement of policy between Westinghouse officials and Father Delaney. Mr. Davis, vice president in charge of radio, is out of town. Our original plan provided for Father Delaney's commending the good in the theater and motion pictures and urging the people to see the acceptable ones.

"It is against the policy of KDKA to condemn anything."

Believe It or Not, Ripley's Here for 'Once-Over' Today

Oddities of Pittsburgh were being scrutinized today by none other than the fact-finding cartoonist, Robert L. Ripley, who tells you to "Believe It or Not."

Preparing 50 odd facts from throughout the world for each week keeps him busy, Ripley confesses. But the mails bring new ideas that Ripley has overlooked during the nine years of digging through histories, encyclopedias and whatnots. In fact, fan mail reaches Ripley from all over the world. This year a staff of 10 helpers in New York has checked on approximately a million letters.

The "Believe It or Not" feature appears in 34 countries. Even in China, the publications print a translated cartoon.

Ripley had a full day's schedule occupying every minute on his one-day visit here. There was a trip through a steel mill, a blindfold cigaret test at the Mesta Machine Company plant and a personal appearance tonight at the Warner Theater. A midnight train will carry him to New York for a radio broadcast tomorrow.

BEN F. WILLIAMS, REALTOR, DIES SUDDENLY

Prominent Business Leader Of South Hills Collapses In Downtown Restaurant

Ben F. Williams, 55, one of the leading real estate developers of the South Hills, died today in the Colonnade Restaurant in the Union Trust building, from a heart attack shortly after he and his son, William Williams, had entered the place.

A former member of the firm of Stevenson, Williams & Johnston, of Washington road, Mr. Williams had formed his own company, the Ben F. Williams Company, about two years ago, which has since developed the Oakhurst plan of lots.

He was the second member of the firm of Stevenson, Williams & Johnston to die in less than a year, A. W. Stevenson having died of pneumonia last February.

Mr. Williams had resided here for about 18 years, having come from Portsmith, O., as a sales representative of a shoe manufacturer. He had been active in the real estate business since 1918.

He was a member of the Dermont and St. Clair Lodges of the Masonic order, the Asralon Commandery, Pittsburgh Consistory, Syria Temple and the Mt. Lebanon Kiwanis Club. He had also been a member of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church.

RUM CASE JURY DISCHARGED

After 24 hours' deliberation, the jury hearing the case of Frank (Pay Day) Oliver and six other defendants on a charge of violating the prohibition law announced it had agreed only on the innocence of Clarence Smith, one of the defendants. The jury was discharged.

Oliver was convicted yesterday of another violation of the prohibition laws. David Hamilton, of Forward Township, arraigned with Oliver, changed his plea to guilty.

Hamilton is a defendant in the second trial. Others are Joseph Petrarco and Pio Riccotte, of West Elizabeth, and Frank Dipodesta, of Versailles.

Both trials were before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. The government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans and the defendants by Attorney W. H. Coleman.

CAROL BUYS FREEDOM

at a chateau near San Remo, Italy. She will come to Paris shortly afterwards.

DETAILS CONCLUDED

The complicated details by which Carol disposed of the love affairs which gained him an international reputation as the royal Don Juan of twentieth-century Europe, were worked out in Paris yesterday by his French attorney, M. Paul Boncour, former president of the Senate, and M. Dinu Cesiano, the Rumanian minister in Paris.

Cesiano was appointed to the Paris post a short while after Carol accomplished his dramatic coup d'etat by which he dethroned his son, the boy king, Michael, and took over the crown of the Rumanian kings.

It was learned that M. Cesiano, an intimate friend of the king, had been sent to Paris for the sole purpose of clearing up the romantic entanglements which Carol contracted during his youth.

FIRST WIFE SEEN

The negotiators first visited Mme. Lambrino at her villa at Neuilly, just outside of Paris, where she has lived for years with her son. Until now, Mme. Lambrino had made ceaseless efforts to induce King Carol to recognize her son, Mircea, as the rightful heir to the Rumanian throne.

In the presence of M. Boncour and M. Cesiano, Mme. Lambrino signed a paper renouncing all claims upon Carol and abandoning her fight in behalf of her son. In exchange for this signature, she received 8,000,000 francs in cash (about $320,000), in addition to the villa where she resides.

Mme. Lupescu, with whom Carol lived during the years of exile which preceded his dramatic seizure of the throne, also signed an agreement to step completely out of the picture. In exchange for this concession she received 2,000,000 francs (about $80,000) in cash as well as a chateau at Shiget, in Transylvania.

REPRIEVE HOPE BUOYS IRENE

NEW CASTLE, Dec. 12.—Hope for a reprieve today buoys Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, whose executions were set yesterday for January 12 by Gov. John S. Fisher.

Their attorneys, planning on an appeal to the Pardon Board for clemency, have announced they will ask for a reprieve, as the Pardon Board will not meet again until February, more than a month after the date fixed for their electrocution. The Supreme Court on November 24 denied them a new trial.

Mrs. Schroeder and Dague were convicted of the murder of Corp Brady Paul, of the State Highway Patrol, near here last December.

Counsel for the condemned pair said reprieves were expected, as the pardon board will not meet again until February 17. The December session of the board ended before appeals were filed.

Thomas W. Dickey, of the defense staff, said appeals would be presented to the pardon board before January 12.

At Harrisburg it was said it was customary for a stay to be granted in circumstances such as surround the cases of Mrs. Schroeder and Dague.

ASKS POWER CHARGE FACTS

Russell Ordered to Explain Attack on Pennsylvania Public Service Body

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Solicitor Charles A. Russell, of the Power Commission, today was called by Secretary Wilbur, chairman of the commission, to explain his criticism of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission. Wilbur yesterday ordered an investigation.

Russell, who accused the Pennsylvania commission of permitting the Clarion River Power Company to issue watered stock, said following the secretary's request that he probably would be ready Monday to reply.

HINTS FURTHER ACTION

Further action by the commission, Secretary Wilbur said, depended upon the facts brought out by Russell, whose accusations were made in the trial of a suit of the Clarion River company against the power commission challenging the commission's right to eliminate company investment claims.

The Pennsylvania commission, through William D. B. Ainey, chairman, demanded Russell be made to prove his charge or apologize to the Pennsylvania commission and to the District of Columbia Supreme Court, where the allegations were made.

Russell also accused the Pennsylvania commission of failing to keep close watch over utility companies, and said "if the state commission won't regulate power companies, then the only hope will be the federal government."

CRITICISM DEPLORED

F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the federal commission, today deplored the criticism made by Russell.

Bonner characterized the situation as "very distressing, since our relations with the Pennsylvania commission always have been highly satisfactory, and the generous co-operation extended by that agency has been most helpful." Bonner said:

Bonner said:

"The Pennsylvania commission is recognized as one of the best regulatory agencies in the country, and it is very distressing to have anything occur that disturbs our harmonious relations.

"The respective rights of the state and the government in the control over these water power developments are somewhat overlapping under existing laws and in order that conflict and duplication of authority may be avoided, close correlation of the actions of the state and federal agencies is absolutely essential."

3 PAY TRIPLE FOR THEFTS

Magistrate T. D. Jones established a precedent in Morals Court today when he fined three women each $18.97, or three times the total value of merchandise they are alleged jointly to have stolen yesterday in a downtown store.

The three, Mrs. Mary Molinero, 57, of 446 Norton street; her daughter, Josephine, 16, and her sister, Mrs. Frances Stefano, 40, of 45 Boggs avenue, paid their fines after admitting the charge.

Magistrate Jones said:

"You have an attorney today and money to pay your fines. It would have been cheaper to pay for the clothing taken in the first place."

Coolidge Makes Appeal To Conservative Forces

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 12.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

When there are so many evidences of unreasoning mental disturbances in the country it could not be expected that all official Washington would remain calm and collected. That would not happen under a system of representative government.

Calvin Coolidge

What the government needs is not the influence of the disturbed elements of the country so much as the influence of the less vocal but more truly representative elements of caution, reason and sound economics. To arouse these conservative forces into action required vigorous language from the President. He could not sound a fire alarm in whispers. Senator Robinson has displayed good judgment and leadership by refusing to become involved in non-essentials and reiterating his purpose to co-operate in relief measures.

The final results of our government are generally sound. The Senate or House sometimes starts wrong, but second thought usually sets them on the right track.

The responsible elements in the government, regardless of party, in a situation like the present, need more public reassurance and support from the conservative forces of the nation. These forces are predominant but they often lack expression. It is time for them also openly to manifest their obligation to co-operate.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

DENIES THEY DISCUSSED HIS WIFE

Stenographer Says Officer, Suspected of Poisoning Mate, Was Ever Gentleman

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Miss Grace Brandon, star witness for the government in the trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard for the alleged poison murder of his wife, today underwent a grilling by the defense as to her love affair with the elderly Army medical officer.

Harry S. Class, Denver attorney, led off with a barrage of questions concerning Shepard's first meetings with the girl, a San Antonio (Tex.) stenographer, for the love of whom the major is charged with poisoning his wife at Fort Riley, Kan., in June, 1929.

TERMS HIM GENTLEMAN

Asked if Shepard had not always conducted himself as a gentleman, the girl replied:

"Yes, he was a perfect gentleman."

Referring to her relations with Shepard while he was stationed for several months at San Antonio prior to his wife's death, Class asked if the major ever had attempted caresses.

The answer was:

"No."

Miss Brandon was attired in a black dress and black hat, in contrast to the green ensemble she wore on the stand yesterday. She seemed composed, but was rather a hesitant witness, insisting that Class repeat various questions before an answer was given.

MET AT BOARDING HOUSE

She testified that she had lived in San Antonio since August, 1924, and said she had been steadily employed since April, 1926.

She said she first met Shepard in November, 1928, when he came to live at the boarding house where she roomed.

There were four Army officers living there, she testified.

"Were you the only woman there at the time?"

"Yes, besides the landlady, Mrs. Wylie."

About a week after becoming acquainted with Shepard, she testified, she accepted an invitation to go to dinner and a show.

QUESTIONED ABOUT WIFE

Asked if he had mentioned his "troubles" with his wife, she answered:

"He didn't discuss it fully."

"After his return to Fort Riley, did he not write you that he wife was in frail health?"

"No."

The first letters from Shepard, she testified, related to his wife's "wild parties and bills she had run up while he was away."

N. Y. OVATION BIG EVENT TOMORROW

Luncheon With Publisher Only Appointment Today; Praised by Ship Steward

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert Einstein returned to his metaphysical world of time and space today after a finite hour in the public gaze.

The father of relativity is passing most of his time aboard the liner Belgenland, which bore him from Antwerp yesterday, in spite of countless invitations to see America now. With him are Frau Else Einstein and Prof. Walter Mayer, of Vienna, his assistant.

Only one appointment was scheduled for him today. He accepted an invitation to be the guest of Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, at a luncheon of his editors.

OFFICIAL RECEPTION

Tomorrow he will be officially received at City Hall by Mayor Walker and a citizens' committee. The ceremonies will be radiocast.

However, despite his reticence, not even Einstein is a mystery to his steward.

So says John Delgado, of the liner Belgenland, who looked out for the German scientist's welfare on his voyage to America. Delgado said:

"Sure, I understand him. He is just like me. He likes to be quiet. I always knew just what he wanted."

TELLS HOW HE ACTS.

He liked his bath very hot.
He scorned a dress suit.
He hid his pencils and papers.
He looked at the stars all night.
He ate double portions of grapes.
He was silent but friendly.
He never complained.

And that made a hit with Delgado, who exclaimed:

"What a passenger. I wish I had to take care of 20 Einsteins. I never sa: anyone like that before. Whenever I inquired if he wanted anything, he just said 'schon gut!'

"Yes, sir, that's the kind of a man I understand."

To delegations from six Jewish organizations of the United States, Dr. Einstein talked briefly today about the subject which, next to science, is closest to his heart—the benevolent works of his own people.

RECEIVES GOLDEN BOOK

Aboard the liner Belgenland, he was presented with a special volume of the golden book of the Jewish national fund, containing the names of all who have given money to the Palestine fund in Einstein's honor.

The Zionist Organization of America, the Jewish National Fund, the Jewish Agency, the Hadassah, the Junior Hadassah and the Avukah were represented in the welcomers.

DELAY PARLEY ON BOULEVARD

The meeting at which the Allegheny River boulevard controversy was to have been thrashed out by the county commissioners and George S. Davison, executive vice president of the Pensylvania Water Company, was called off today when Davidson's office notified County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong that Davison was out of town.

Armstrong and Public Works Director Norman F. Brown have charged in public utterances that Davison repudiated an agreement for the passage of the boulevard through the water company's property at Nadine Station, and is demanding the county pay $500,000 for improvements to the plant before he will agree to permit the county to cross the property.

It was expected that the matter would have been given a thorough airing today. When it will come up again depends upon Davison.

Director Brown has said that he is ready to prove every statement he has made and also to demonstrate that the boulevard has not been bungled, as charged by Commissioner Charles C. McGovern.

TOM MIX SUED FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—A divorce suit on file here today asserted Tom Mix, hard-riding cowboy of screen and the circus, had galloped away from home and didn't intend to come back.

Mrs. Victoria Mix, in filing the suit yesterday, said Mix left November 26, and by way of emphasizing his statement that he would not be back, twirled a loaded gun on his trigger finger. She was greatly frightened, she said.

While Mix always was a hero on the screen, his wife pictured him as a different character outside the films. He treated her with "extreme cruelty" for the past five years, she charged.

Mr. and Mrs. Mix were married in Riverside, Cal., in 1918. The actor transferred to his wife in January, 1928, property valued at $100,000. The film cowboy was married to his first wife, Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, daughter of a cattleman, in 1909, at Medora, N. D. She divorced him in April, 1917, charging desertion. Mix now is in New York.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Luis Gallopin, known here as a New York banker, and said to be in Mexico as an agent of European holders of the Mexican external debt, sailed today on the French steamer Espagne for Havana after expulsion from the country.

The official version of the expulsion is not known here, but Gallopin said that four agents of the government cornered him on a Mexico City street, made him enter an automobile and drove him to the Valbuena flying field where they put him into an airplane which brought him to Vera Cruz.

AID READY FOR N. Y. BANK

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(INS.)—State Banking Department representatives today continued auditing accounts of the Bank of United States, which closed its doors yesterday.

Meantime, depositors had passed the flurry incident to the closing as 23 Clearing House banks stood ready to pay out loans up to 50 per cent of depositors' claims, and banking officials predicted 100 per cent return would eventually be made.

The institution's plight was attributed to certain over-the-counter brokers who are said to have caused rumors to be circulated without justification.

New York City was one of the depositors in the amount of $1,500,000. Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly was directed to take steps to recover it.

8 MILLION B. & L. THEFT BARED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Charles A. Whitmore, building and loan commissioner, announced today that defalcations totaling several million dollars from the Guaranty Building and Loan Association were admitted in a written confession by Gilbert Beesemyer, 45, its secretary-manager.

Directors of the association said Beesemyer's misappropriations might aggregate $8,000,000. They were said to have affected not only the association, in which he was a 65 per cent stockholder, but also the North American Bond and Mortgage Company the Guaranty Holding Association, both of Los Angeles.

The confession, Whitmore said, was given to him and to directors of the association early today after which Beesemyer was taken into custody.

The building and loan association was capitalized at $11,000,000 but officials said its deposits exceeded that figure.

PINCHOT TO TRY COX JOB PLAN

Governor-Elect Gifford Pinchot's State Unemployment Commission today was putting into effect recommendations of the Rev. James R. Cox, adopted yesterday at the commission's first meeting in Philadelphia.

As a result, the governor-elect announced he would appoint county committees to push the work.

The Cox plan is for each city to handle its own unemployed, which amounts to 30 per cent of the whole, in its own building program, returning 50 per cent to the nearby towns and communities to which they belong. The other 20 per cent,—classed as floaters—will be handled through social agencies.

The Cox plan, based on a survey of 3,000 customers of St. Patrick's Church soup kitchen, was adopted as a working basis. The committee also will study the situation regarding unemployed girls and women.

STIMSON, ROOT FACE GRILLING OVER COURT

Borah Seeks to Develop Relationship With League; Confer With President

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Secretary of State Stimson and Elihu Root, ardent League Court advocates, will be grilled by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when it begins consideration of the protocols of American membership, it became known today.

Senator Borah (Rep.) chairman of the committee intends to question them to develop the close relationship between the court and the League of Nations and the extent to which the United States will become involved in European politics should the United States join, it was learned.

This information will be laid before the Senate when the committee reports the protocols, possibly in January.

The President, Secretary Stimson and Root held their first conference yesterday and began to outline their campaign to have the United States adhere to the Court. They lunched at the White House.

While they would make no comment, it was learned that they have abandoned any hope of having the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "bottle up" the Court here by withholding a report. They have decided to fight it out at this session and will attempt to force a vote.

While Borah believes enough votes are available to report the Court to the Senate during the present session, Republican leaders are working overtime to prevent such a report, fearing the League issue may force an extra session of Congress.

Christmas Rush Brings Busy Days to Doll Lady

Dear Little Girls:

The cold, drizzling rain of yesterday didn't stop the dodge of my wonder "Tickletoes" dolls. Scores of little girls came out in the rain, selected their "Tickletoes" and went away full of happiness and sunshine—rain or no rain. Most of the little girls who came in for their dollies don't want to take them home in the big box in which they are packed—they want to carry that big beautiful, new playmate right in their arms and proudly show her to everyone on the way home. Yesterday, however, it was different. It was too rainy and too cold for "Tickletoes."

Day by day, as Christmas approaches, I get busier and busier. So many, many little girls are writing to me to find out how they can get a lovable "Tickletoes" that it keeps me going day and night to answer their letters. But I don't go home a single night until every letter that has come to me has been answered.

Of course, my daily letter to little girls would not be complete if I didn't try to describe "Tickletoes." Mere words, however, will not tell you everything about this wonder doll. In the first place "Tickletoes" is an unusually big doll—she's close to 20 inches tall. She's almost as tall as this newspaper is long. She has eyes that gleam with happiness and they open and close just like a real baby's eyes. She has rosy cheeks and a charming smile.

She does some of the cutest things—plays with her toes, claps her hands, curls her tresses and sits down just like a funny sister. You know her two small arms are made of rubber and you can wash them with a brush. "Tickletoes" is unbreakable and is dressed in organdy, with stockings and slippers to match. Now you know something about "Tickletoes." Don't you want her for a playmate?

Here are the names of just a few of the little girls who have written to me within a day or two.

Marjorie Cronk, Dorothy Eicher, Norma Jones, Mary Welsh, Madge Fowles, Gloria Brancchi, Joan Stacel, Evelyn Paynter, Adele Myers, Betty Taylor, Mary Hall, Helen Cherrish, Betty Howard, Lillian Hall, Jean Johnston, Gertrude O'Neil, Virginia Dutton, Iris Calhoun, Alberta Hull, Betty Hopton, Hazel Hough, Mary Belling, Helen Burns and Clara Phillips.

Of course every little girl wants one of my "Tickletoes" dolls. They are not hard to get. Send me your name and address on the coupon and I'll tell you what you have to do to get a "Tickletoes" for a playmate. You can easily do what I ask before Christmas just like scores of other little girls have done it. Goodbye 'till tomorrow.

WIDOW, 82, DIES AFTER BEING HIT BY AUTO

Six Others Injured in Motor Accidents; Pair Arrested, One as Hit-Run Driver

Mrs. Rachel Eggers, 82, a widow, of 116 Quincy avenue, Mt. Oliver, was dead today from injuries suffered December 3 when she was struck by an automobile at Brownsville avenue and Bausman street. She died in her home last night.

According to the coroner's report, the car was driven by Regis Friend, 20, of 314 McKinley avenue.

Injured in an automobile accident near Blairsville yesterday, Theodore McBride, 28, of 2115 Broadway, and Louis J. Smith, Jr., 25, of 1205 Waterman avenue, Pittsburgh, were in South Side Hospital today. McBride's condition was considered serious.

William Dickson, 43, of 2235 Bedford avenue, was recovering in Allegheny General Hospital today from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by John Williams, 33, of 6508 Winslow street. Williams was arrested.

Struck by a truck at Penn avenue and Ninth street, August Engel, 69, of 600 Delaware avenue, Oakmont, was in Allegheny General Hospital today. He suffered lacerations of the head.

Accused of being a hit-run driver, Peter Klodarke, 40, of Kittanning pike, was being held in lieu of $1,000 bail in Sharpsburg police station today.

He was said by Constable Richard Johnson, of O'Hara Township, the arresting officer, to have struck Mrs. Mary Call, 61, of 4 Jordan road, Sharpsburg, while driving in Kittanning pike, near Sharpsburg, last night. The woman was taken to St. Francis Hospital, where it was said her condition was serious.

Mrs. Miller Concedes Dr. Day 'Last Word'

Mrs. Carroll Miller from today on will be remembered, if for nothing else, as the woman who gave up that traditional right to the "last word."

The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, was the one who had it.

Slated to speak last night on the pros and cons of prohibition in St. Peter's Episcopal parish hall, Craft avenue, under the auspices of the Fourth Ward League of Women Voters, they battled for place.

Each wanted to speak last, and Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman, was in a dilemma. Dr. Day was to defend prohibition, Mrs. Miller to oppose. She said:

"How can I answer Dr. Day speaking first? It is up to the party in power to defend its position. When the Democratic party was in power, it had to defend its position, and later the Republican party had to speak for itself and now with prohibition in, it is the right of its defender to tell why it is in. I stand on my parliamentary rights and will not talk first. Dr. Clarence True Wilson always speaks first."

Dr. Day answered:

"Thanks to Mrs. Carroll Miller for the information that the prohibition party is in power, but don't place me in the same category with Dr. Clarence True Wilson. This gives me some embarrassment, and I would gladly give Mrs. Miller everything she wants, but I cannot defend until the attack is made. This seems to me the logic of things. I desire to be chivalrous, but on the other hand I owe loyalty to the cause I am espousing."

COMPROMISE REACHED

Explaining that he had a previous understanding that he was to have the last spot, he refused to talk.

Mrs. J. O. Miller said:

"Neither of the speakers will speak, and I'm sorry I'm not prepared or I would talk on both sides. I will speak on the new election code if you wish."

There was dissent in the audience. Dr. Day refused to toss a coin. A woman suggested that some compromise might be made by allowing rebuttal. It was finally agreed that Dr. Day lead off, followed by Mrs. Miller, each in 30-minute dissertations, and that Dr. Day then have 10 minutes for rebuttal. Mrs. Miller asserted that she would waive any rebuttal rather than disappoint the 200 or more listeners.

DEFERS TO AUDIENCE

Dr. Day spoke:

"I shall never go into a thing like this again without having an agreement in writing. It is embarrassing to a man to have to stand on his previous agreement. It's like a football eleven defending when its expected opponents are not on the field. But I recede in deference to the audience and Mrs. J. O. Miller."

Deriding the nonsense which, he said, was injected into the prohibition question by both drys and anti-drys, in speech and in the press, Dr. Day outlined five beliefs on prohibition. He said:

"Prohibition has not had a fair trial.

"Prohibition is not responsible for all the ills laid at its door.

"Prohibition is not responsible for the breakdown of all authority.

"Prohibition is not chiefly responsible for corruption.

"Prohibition has contributed to prosperity, although it may not have been entirely responsible."

He pointed out that prohibition had probably placed the liquor transmission in the worst hands, but asked:

"In whose hands was it before? Liquor was always in the hands of those who wouldn't obey even the mildest regulation."

FEARS RETURN OF SALOON

He denied prohibition had ensnared the best people and insisted the saloon would return if the dry law were repealed.

He challenged the state's rights plan, said he found no alternative solution, and declared youth of today was better than that of 30 years ago. He maintained that youth was destined today to question the leadership of the past generation in politics and industry, and said:

"The hip-pocket flask is only one minor factor."

A breakup in the morals of some he ascribed to the war and loose ideas acquired from Europe.

Mentioning the rackets as based on profits, he described bil, dope and other traffic as producing official corruption, declaring:

"It's nonsense to blame it all on prohibition.

"Often disgusted and weary over the problem, I have sought other solutions. If the state makes and sells liquor, that's socialism, which the state will not grant to the manufacturer of other commodities."

He likewise condemned private manufacture and government sale, and local option, and declared local option would mean a decrease in health and economic productivity. He said:

"Prohibition cannot be settled on that basis. What must be settled for one must be settled for all because it affects all."

PASTIME BECOMES EVIL

Mrs. Miller said:

"My first vote was cast for a dry community in Aurora, Ill., under local option. It was in one of the three remaining counties of Illinois which were not then dry. I agree that the liquor business was in evil hands. But I know that a complaint that a saloon was selling to minors or drunken husbands resulted in closing of the place by court order. What was once to a great group of people since the early ages a harmless pastime, now has become an evil which no law touches. I know the old business had its evils. But it never sent 30 per cent of all the law violators into the Federal penitentiaries, as a President said of today, or reach the point, as in Ohio recently, where 50 per cent of the prisoners in the jail were there for violating one law of the land.

"The saloon was an evil, but at least there was a law regulating it that could be and was enforced.

TELLS OF RUM NEAR CHURCH

"Speakeasies dot this whole city. In Shadyside, in Oakland—two minutes from this church you can go and get a drink. Candy, grocery, meat stores, even undertaking establishments sell liquor. And what kind do they sell?

"Dr. Day fails to make the distinction that this is different from other laws. This law is not to protect the majority against those who commit violence, but to protect the weak against themselves.

"Because the law is nullified, as Sunday concerts nullified the blue laws in Pittsburgh, I want to see the prohibition amendment repealed. Take the sale of grape juice. There is no way to stop this, except to tell the government or the buyer that you are buying it for the making of wine. And Mrs. Willebrandt has changed from the Joan of Arc of enforcement to the Charlotte Corday of the grape juice industry.

"Dr. Day says prohibition hasn't got a fair trial. Think that every week 1,000 have been sent to jail, with increased arrests in every city for drunkenness. If all those jailed because of prohibition should make up a parade, it would take two days and two nights for the army to pass this church door. Wayne B. Wheeler said it would take $5,000,000 a year for enforcement. Now it's up to $15,000,000 a year, without counting the cost of the Coast Guard, Department of Justice and the world's sixth largest navy.

"No one asks the government to enforce any of the other amendments."

CHANGED ATTITUDE

Mrs. Miller reviewed the changed attitude resulting from the attempt to legislate morals into the home, saying it deprived a parent of the right to teach the child right and wrong, and the right of the child to decide right from wrong.

She denied that the World War had affected youth's attitude on prohibition, saying:

"During the war the youth of today was between five and 10 years old. The service men are now well in their thirties. And why are students throughout the land against the law? Simply because it deprives them of the right to say 'yes' or 'no.'"

Explaining that 300 privately owned stills could produce more liquor than was made before prohibition, Mrs. Miller disagreed with Dr. Day in the belief that alcohol consumption and production had decreased. She suggested that the power be taken away from the federal government, and regretted that the Protestant church had entered politics.

She said:

"When my church or any church takes politics in, it pushes Christianity out."

PLEA FOR FREEDOM

Making a plea for a return to freedom, she branded prohibition as that which puts law above conscience, as institutionalism run wild. She said the amendment was out of harmony with the other amendments and never could be assimilated into the Constitution, adding:

"I could point out its inequalities, mention clubs that even Mr. Pennington didn't send officers to.

"But I want to feel free inside, and there are millions like me. I want my children to grow up with that feeling, the feeling our revolutionary fathers fought for. Money in the bank, more washing machines, more radios, more cars, perhaps they mean much, but transcending all these is that something which cries in us for liberty."

Dr. Day, in a brief rebuttal, declared Abraham Lincoln had said that the next great amendment, after slavery, would be prohibition. He denied that the church should refrain from espousing issues of social reform in which its ministers believed, although admitting that he didn't agree with the establishment of a Methodist Episcopal office in Washington.

And then they shook hands.

CONVICTED, MAY BE INNOCENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—An entry in a New York hotel register of August 6, 1928, today convinced a woman federal prosecutor that she had convicted the wrong man for swindling Jacob Hazelbaker, of Pittsburgh, of $150,000 on a race track bookmaking game.

Ellamarie Pailor, assistant United States attorney, who two weeks ago successfully prosecuted William Humphries, of Kinston, N. C., on a mail fraud charge, said last night that she would move at once for reversal of sentence on the ground that he was innocent.

Humphries, a bootlegger, according to his own testimony, said he was deported from Canada for gambling about July 21, 1928. Inquiry showed he actually was deported August 6, and reached New York August 8, the date of the Hazelbaker fraud in Toronto.

The signature of one of his admitted aliases, W. B. Reynolds, was verified on the register of the Monterey Hotel, where check-up showed he remained about a month, Miss Pailor said.

PLANE DOWNED ON WAY HERE

The Pittsburgh-bound plane of the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., with three passengers, made a landing at Yorkville, O., late yesterday when bad weather between here and Columbus interrupted its flight from Columbus to Bettis Field. The landing was made at an intermediate field of the company.

Mrs. C. T. Cook, of Oklahoma City, a passenger for Pittsburgh, was one of the three in the plane. She and two men bound for New York boarded a train and completed their journey eastward. Mrs. Cook is visiting relatives in Sharon, Pa. The plane returned to Columbus.

According to local officials of the air line, the plane was in touch with the local operations station at all times and the landing was made in perfect safety.

BALDWIN GEMS ARRIVE IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The $1,000,000 jewel collection of the late Elias Jackson (Lucky) Baldwin, recently purchased by Harry Winston, Fifth avenue jeweler, arrived here today in separate registered mail packages from Los Angeles. Baldwin was a California mining operator and race horse owner.

The collection of 25 pieces, including a necklace of pear-shaped diamonds weighing 100 carats, which has been kept intact for half a century, will be broken up and sold to individuals.

Probably the most valuable piece is a long chain set with 200 carats of diamonds and valued at $250,000. Sale of the jewels was negotiated through the Supreme Court of California.

Judiciary Guests At Hoover Reception

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—President and Mrs. Hoover last night entertained for the judiciary at the second of the formal White House receptions.

Headed by the Supreme Court, the federal judges and attaches of the various courts, the reception line included virtually all of the ranking officials of the Department of Justice. The House and Senate Judiciary committees also were guests.

Kills Self With Gun In Shooting Gallery

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Oscar E. Mayhugh, 53, was lounging in front of a shooting gallery. Asked by a girl attendant if he wanted to shoot, he took a gun, fired once at the target and then swung the weapon around and sent two bullets through his head. He died an hour later.

ENGINES MADE HERE FOR CHILE

Four huge electric locomotives are being shipped this week from the East Pittsburgh plants of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to Chile. They were built on the first order ever received from Chile by telephone.

The electrical equipment was built and installed by the local plant, and the cabs and mechanical parts were built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works. The Bellis, a huge liner of the Christian Smith steamship line, is at Philadelphia, awaiting to transport the engines to Chile. The freighter is to sail December 17.

The locomotives are to be put in service on 110 miles of the main line of the Chilean State Railways system between Santiago and Valparaiso. Francisco Sandoval, superintendent of operations and maintenance, has been in Pittsburgh supervising and inspecting the construction of the new locomotives.

Injunction Refused In School Dispute

BEAVER, Pa., Dec. 12.—The State Supreme Court has affirmed the Beaver County Court in refusing an injunction to certain citizens of West Mayfield to halt the building of a school house there.

The contract for the building has been let and the court held to sustain the injunction would cause a loss to the school district of West Mayfield.

How Much Duty on Einstein's Theory?

By Arthur 'Bugs' Baer

"I see that Commissioner Doran is dropping eggs in alcohol.

"I prefer mine cooked in butter.

"My relativity on space proves there is always room for one more sucker when the line forms to the right.

"As to my theory on the relativity of time I think that six months is about right for a New York judge.

"I can tell you the exact location of the unknown planets. I can plot the celestial orbits down to a whisper. But don't ask me where Judge Crater is."

The interview was over. But it proved that a young fact is better than an old rumor.

That's no threat.

If there was only one hoss in the world he would bet on him. And lose.

But the last hoss in the world will not be the one that plays leap frog with the prince over the Liverpool jump.

It will not be Black Beauty or Salvadore. It will be the nag that clatters past our window every morning at 5.

It will be a milk wagon gazelle with four heels all out of time and tempo.

We have often threatened that hoss with extinction.

Also the driver.

And the wagon. But the hoss seems impervious to diplomatic manipulations.

He's got the loudest feet we ever heard. And a cobble street makes a fine xylophone for him to scamper on.

We know he's going to be the last hoss in the world. He's been passing by our window for the last 30 years and has never skipped a beat.

The sound of iron hoss shoes on a frozen street is a beautiful lullaby in a dawn that is colder than a vell-digger's dinner pail.

And we know that milk hoss is going to outlast all the others, because he's now 50 years old and hasn't got a beard yet.

Horses have played an important role in history. King Richard believed for one, but Jesse James couldn't spare any. Paul Revere used one in a marathon and should have been disqualified.

We used to curry one in the Army. His name was Dynamite.

We can always buy him carpet slippers for Christmas because we have the exact pattern of his foot on our chest. One day we curried him against the grain just to hear him laugh.

They weren't handing out wound stripes for that.

But we got an honorable discharge from the Army. Not because we rated it. But because they had run out of the other kind.

With 34,000,000 motor cars in America, any hoss is out of place if he isn't receiving guests in a museum of natural history.

John W. Black, 42, veteran Pittsburgh newspaper man, died early today in Allegheny General Hospital from lobar pneumonia. He had been ill two weeks at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ralph Lanahan, 3881 Woodland avenue, North Side, where he made his home, but his condition was not regarded as serious until yesterday, when he was rushed to the hospital.

Most of Mr. Black's newspaper work was done on the old Chronicle-Times. In recent years he had been doing publicity work in connection with automobile racing.

Besides Mrs. Lanahan, he leaves another sister, Mrs. Mary Flury, and a brother, William, Black, both of Pittsburgh.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Payton funeral home, 3571 California avenue, with interment in the United Cemetery.

In 1929 he headed his own expedition to the Canadian Rockies where geological studies and explorations were made for the pre-Cambrian collection of Harvard, DePauw, Illinois, Minnesota and Rochester universities.

WIFE ADMITS KILLING VET

CALDWELL, O., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Ivy Workham, 32, has confessed, Noble County authorities announced today, that she shot and killed her husband, Clarence, 33, a World War veteran and school teacher yesterday as he sat in his home. She is held in jail here pending an inquest.

Mrs. Workham first told police her husband had ended his own life, because of despondency due to ill health. The shooting took place while the two children of the couple were on their way to school.

Workham had given up school teaching because of failing health, according to police. He and his wife had quarreled frequently, police learned.

SCHOOLS HELD CRIME CURE

The system of law-observance must find its answer in the schools, S. H. Brownell, assistant county superintendent, told 500 school directors of Allegheny County today at their luncheon and address meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking on Allegheny County's program for "Character Training," Mr. Brownell declared that the pupil today needs traits that particular development which will mould his character and build up a resistance against the temptations of crime so widely sweeping the land. He urged that only the best trained teachers be used, and advised that this year the character building program of the county schools be started on a basis of emphasis for character in Christmas and Christmas.

Dr. William Dennis, deputy state superintendent of public instruction, spoke on "Important Phases of the School Law." Mrs. Lena Z. Kenney, president of the directors' association, presided. Other speakers this afternoon were to be E. A. Nolen, assistant county superintendent; Mrs. Harry W. Kelso, Eagle P. S. Stroup and F. H. Brennan.

Discussions followed each program.

GIBARDVILLE, Pa., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Five men, four of whom were masked and carried revolvers and sawed-off shotguns, today held up and looted the First National Bank of this place, of $1,500 in cash and fled when the cashier, A. G. Schreiner, set off a burglar alarm when told to put up his hands.

When the bandits scooped the cash on the counter and in a drawer of the cashier's desk and ran from the bank.

As they departed they warned the nine persons in the bank not to follow them, leaped into the car and set off toward Shenandoah and Ringtown.

Several people attracted by the burglar alarm commandeered cars and set off in pursuit of the bandits, but gave up the chase when the fleeing men fired at them.

A. Van Duzer, assistant chief engineer of the department.

Responsibility for the removal of all disapproved lights has been given to Capt. Wilson C. Price of the State Motor Control. This work has been started and it is likely all of the 309 illegal lights will disappear within a few months, it was said. All signals which did not show a peak traffic count of 500 vehicles an hour on the main street and 125 vehicles or 250 pedestrians an hour on the intersecting street, were disapproved.

Explorers Film Pygmy Race in Africa

NAIROBI, Kenya Africa, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Pictures of a little-known race of pygmies inhabiting the depths of the Ituri forest in the Belgian Congo made up most of the "game" bagged by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, photographer-hunters who returned to Nairobi today after a year in the African wilds.

One of their pictures shows a group of 200 of the pygmies and others depict the daily life of this strange people.

Prisoner Freed As Jury Looks At Teeth

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A jury of four women and eight men in the Federal District Court took a good look in the mouth of Peter Laychock of Primrose, near Myersville, and acquitted him of a charge of illegally selling liquor.

Federal agents said they had purchased liquor from him and added they were sure he was the man because he had a gold tooth.

Counsel for Laychock had him open his mouth wide, and the jury could see only two rows of white teeth.

EARLY BISHOP VESPER THEME

Annual vesper services will be held Sunday evening by the Fort Pitt general assembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, at St. Philomena's Church, Squirrel Hill.

The Venerable John Neumann, who was pastor of old St. Philomena's Church at Liberty avenue and Fourteenth streets, and who afterwards was the fourth bishop of Philadelphia, will be the subject of the sermon.

St. Philomena's being one of the oldest parishes in the Pittsburgh diocese, the vesper services at the new church, and the sermon on one of the early bishops, is in keeping with the program of the assembly in bringing home to the present generation some of the early Catholic history of Western Pennsylvania.

The bishop's night observation of the the assembly will be held in Duquesne Council house, Fifth and Bellefield avenues, December 18. Members from out-of-town assemblies are expected to attend the informal dinner which will mark the evening's program.

BODIES OF FOUR SLAIN FOUND

WATFORD CITY, N. D., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The recovery of four bodies, three of them from a grave dug in a floor of a farm barn, today led county authorities to say they were close to a solution of the mysterious disappearance of a family of six near Sichafer last February. The arrest of Charles Bannon led to the recovery of the bodies of A. E. Haven, who had lived on the farm; his sons, Daniel, 19, and Leland, 16, and an infant 3 months old. Mrs. Haven and a 3-year-old child still were missing. Bones of the latter child were also believed found, but identification was not certain. The victims apparently had been beaten to death with a hammer.

LINK 25 CRIMES TO EX-OFFICER

After the Briggs holdup, in which his bandit pal, Frank Ferris, was shot and killed, Nieporte declared he fled to Toledo where he was married. He continued eastward and was arrested in Butler, December 3.

SALE OF SEALS AIDS DOCTORS

Christmas health seals help give doctors, medical students at the University of Pittsburgh, and nurses, a practical course in tuberculosis. The money spent for seals defray the expenses of this course. The pennies spent for them return to the people through doctors and nurses having a knowledge of tuberculosis.

Pitt medical students are obliged to pursue their tuberculosis work at the Tuberculosis League Hospital because of the hospital's excellent equipment and material. It means he will be the better able to recognize tuberculosis in a patient.

Senior medical students have the benefit of bedside clinics and of lectures by physicians versed in tuberculosis work. The sophomore class benefits by lectures from the same sources. Lectures for nurses provide them with a better knowledge of how to care for tuberculosis patients. Graduate physicians have availed themselves of the opportunity given at the league hospital to take a post-graduate course in tuberculosis.

ASK SUPPLIES FOR NEEDY

The constant demand for food and clothing by families of unemployed men has forced the Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League of Woman Voters to again ask for supplies of every kind that can be used by needy families, according to an announcement today. The announcement sets forth the fact that the league is not duplicating distribution of food, clothing or funds where it is humanely possible to avoid it.

ALIEN JAILED, FINED IN FRAUD

Ahmad Mohamad, 38, a Syrian of Detroit, was sentenced in Federal Court to pay a $100 fine, serve four months in jail and surrender his certificate of naturalization.

His citizenship was revoked and penalties imposed by Judge Nelson McVicar after a jury convicted him of unlawfully procuring naturalization in the United States Court on September 8, 1927, by making false affidavits to naturalization examiners.

Mohamad, according to testimony of government witnesses, fraudulently claimed he resided in Pittsburgh for one year before filing application for citizenship.

During the trial Attorney Harry Diamond, defense counsel, asked that a juror be withdrawn for talking to a government witness. Judge McVicar refused the motion after interrogating the juror and witness and learning their conversation had no bearing on the trial.

KING GIVES U. S. VICTORIAN RUG

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Receipt of a gift from King George V. of Great Britain of a carpet on which the King's grandmother, Queen Victoria, stood when she opened Crystal Palace in London years ago, was announced by the Smithsonian Institution.

The carpet, manufactured in Scotland and considered in its time the highest example of the carpet weavers' art, is 45 feet long and 17 feet wide. It was found in a London warehouse by Sir Auckland Geddes while searching for furnishings for the British embassy here.

For years it graced the ballroom of the embassy, but on account of its historic value it was not removed to the new embassy building.

PAINTING DOGS ARTIST'S HOBBY

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Diana Thorne's idea of a perfect existence is to go about from city to city making portraits of dogs. She has already painted or etched a good part of the canine populations of New York, Chicago, Boston and Detroit. If she lives long enough, she hopes to do all the principal cities of the United States and then start in on the small towns. She sighed today:

"There's Pittsburgh. But first I'll have to go to St. Louis and Palm Beach."

Thomas, Baritone, Sings Here Tonight

John Charles Thomas, America's premier baritone, will give the third May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque tonight. In the grand opera field he will sing the aria from "Hamlet" by Ambroise Thomas. A group of French and German songs will also be given, and the following group in English: "Camerado" by James H. Rogers, "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes" by John Alden Carpenter, "Gwine to Hebb'n" by Jacques Wolf, "Home on the Range," a Texas cowboy ballad by David Guion, and "When I Think Upon the Maidens" by Michael Head.

SUNDAY RELIEF SHOWS TO GO ON

Sunday movies will be shown indefinitely in Ambridge, it was decided by the Ambridge Associated Relief, after the huge success of the exhibition held in Warner Brothers Ambridge Theater last Sunday.

The association was organized by the borough's officials and leading business men for the purpose of helping to carry on relief with the regular welfare organizations.

The initial performances were attended by more than 2,000 persons from Ambridge, Freedom, Aliquippa and other nearby towns. Those attending the performances at 7:30 and 9:30 p. m. did not pay admission, but donated whatever they cared to give to the needy.

The use of the theater was donated by the Warner officials, who have also promised the association the free use of the auditorium and films for relief work.

The executive committee consists of J. N. Walker, chairman; P. J. Caul, F. C. Schroeder, B. Scott McFarland, W. C. Undercuffler, J. F. Maloney and M. B. Nadler. J. F. McKee is treasurer, and S. L. Card the secretary of the association.

CHICAGO KILLER DIES IN CHAIR

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(A.P.)—William Lenhardt, gunman, whose testimony two days ago helped save his aged mother from a prison sentence on charges of conspiracy, was electrocuted today at 12:14 a. m., in the Cook County jail, for the slaying of a North Side restaurant owner.

Lenhardt's mother, Mrs. Julia Glovka of Cleveland, was acquitted of attempting to engineer his freedom through a jail break. He testified in court she knew nothing of his plans to escape.

An attempt by the slayer's wife to visit him for a last goodbye was unsuccessful because she arrived at the county jail after regular visiting hours. She said:

"I thought he would get a reprieve. That's why I hadn't come to see him during the last two weeks."

COL. SCRANTON DIES AT 82

Two daughters also survive him, Mrs. Samuel Swift, Long Island, N. Y., and Mrs. Lewis Henry, Orange, N. J.

GIRL COLLECTS JUNGLE RELICS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Miss Bessie Steen, of San Jose, Cal., who endured real hardship in her efforts to win a master's degree from the University of California, by way of the Brazilian jungles, sent a collection of rare trophies to the university museum and another to a museum at Philadelphia.

The items now on their way to the United States are concrete reminders of the most exciting months of this young woman's life. Since last spring she has been living among the jungle tribes. On one trek she waded for days through the rivers, beating her way past poisonous reptiles and at one time living two days without water.

She was escorted by 10 men, all of long experience in the jungles, but even at that she was almost kidnaped by one tribe.

Held in Shooting Of Floor Coach

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Arnold Higgins, 20, of Smithfield, was held in jail there today charged by state police with shooting and wounding Dwight Clark, 25, who previously had prosecuted Higgins on a charge of stealing milk. Clark, coach of an independent basketball team here and an oil company worker, was shot as he walked into the yard of his home at Folsom.

OVERMAN RITES TO BE HELD IN SENATE

Signal Honors Planned for Veteran North Carolina Senator; Served 28 Years

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Funeral services for Sen. Lee Slater Overman, veteran Democratic leader from North Carolina, will be held in the United States Senate chamber at 8 o'clock tonight, it was announced today by Vice President Curtis.

Members of the immediate family, of the House and Senate and of the President's cabinet will attend the services.

This honor to the late senator will shatter precedent, since it will be the first time a funeral has been held in the Senate chamber at night. Directly after the services, the body will be taken to North Carolina for interment.

28 YEARS IN SENATE

Senator Overman closed 76 years of life and 28 of service in the Senate chamber, shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. An indisposition of a few days standing had suddenly turned dangerous yesterday afternoon when he suffered an internal hemorrhage. He had rallied and was expected to last through the night at least when, unexpectedly, he was stricken by a second hemorrhage. Death then was inevitable.

SOON LEADING FIGURE

After a political career already distinguished, Overman entered the Senate in 1903 and soon became a leading figure in the Democratic party ranks. During the World War, particularly, he became essential to President Wilson. His snowy white hair was acquired in the heavy war tasks which included service on five major committees. He sponsored the act which gave President Wilson war-time powers more sweeping than any ever exercised by an American chief executive, and was the auther of much vital legislation of that day.

SECOND IN SENORITY

A queer stroke of fate ended Overman's life but a short time before he would have become North Carolina's senior Senator. Two years before he came to the Senate, North Carolina had sent Furnifold M. Simmons to the chamber. Neither was defeated until last year; Simmons lost in the Democratic primary of his state. He steps out on March 3. Overman then would have been dean of the Senate. As it is, Reed Smoot, of Utah, eight years his junior, will become the dean. Both began service on the same day.

30 New Cases Under City Quarantine

The contagious disease report of the Department of Health for the 24-hour period ending at noon today was: Scarlet fever, 3; diphtheria, 2; measles, 5; chicken pox, 15; pneumonia, 5.

SKIN DISEASES

WIFE WOUNDED IN STORE SHOOTING DIES

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Our annual contribution to the sale of Christmas seals is a poem. Last year we published the poem and this year we are reprinting it. It was written by Val Oldshue, a newspaperman, who is attached to the Christmas seal sale.

We publish this poem not because it is good poetry but because it is bad poetry, always pointing out that the Christmas seals are good seals and should be bought.

Author Oldshue agrees with us that his brainchild is not good poetry. This poem takes on distinction—it is the only poem in all history scorned by its author. Here it is:

Some seals are valued for their fur,
And others for their oil;
To hunt them in their water haunts
Requires much skill and toil.

But there is one seal you can hunt,
To catch it, use a penny;
It is a jolly Christmas Seal
That brings good health to many.

If you try to eavesdrop on conversation among the patrons of Mrs. Katherine Baker's dining rooms on the Clairton road, you'll probably be perplexed. Many of Mrs. Baker's friends are actors and actresses and their slang of the backstage is meaningless to most of us.

But not so to Mrs. Baker. She knows that "killing" another actor's lines is to distract attention from that actor while he is reciting his best bits. She'll tell you that cue-biting is the business of picking up one's cue prematurely. "A stage hog" is an actor who insists on keeping to the center of the stage, and to "balloon" is to forget your lines. "Milking" an audience is the widely practiced art of begging for applause and ad-libbing, of course, is making up lines spontaneously. "A dead pan" is an expressionless face and "mugging" is making faces, as a child might. Shenandoah and Mingo Junction are "the sticks" and the stage manager's alias is Simon Legree. "A left-legged dancer" is one who can't dance and standing-room tickets are "hard-wood."

Portrait: He is one of the town's professional gamblers, but he doesn't like to be known as such. He is small in height, well and conservatively dsessed, courteous to everybody. He is polite to newspapermen but shrinks from their company because he is afraid that, somehow or other, such contacts lead to publicity, which he fears. Some years ago he was indicted on faked evidence of liquor selling and his gambling spot was raided. He can't forget that his name was on Page One for months. He was in the "big dough" once but today he isn't. Nevertheless the spot he is running now is as expensively furnished as any you've ever seen. He meets visitors at the door, bows low and escorts them to the big gaming room. If you're a regular he'll do "a dealer"—which means that you can have as many chips as you want, and settle later. If you yourself want to be limited to $200 he'll raise two fingers. Friends describe him by saying either "He's got class" or "He's a square shooter."

3 Men Sent to Jail On Dry Law Charge

Pleading guilty in Federal Court to violating the prohibition law, Ferdinand Gizzante was given six months in jail, and James Pizzamo and Peter Punans two months each. Fred Schmidt, another defendant, was placed upon probation for two years.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

See by the papers that the government is not going to purposely bump you off with poisoned denatured alcohol. They are going to let you live but make you suffer. They claim this new ingredient they put in makes the smell something like a cross between garlic and bad eggs. Going to take more than bad odor to stop this new bunch of drinkers we got. They will just slide a clothespin down over their nose and go right after it. All you will have to do is dilute it with "Jockey Club" cologne.

TELLS OF AERIAL WAR

CAPT. HANS STOCKMAN KARL B. WEBER

Capt. Stockman, German war ace who told Pittsburgh's Aero Club of some of his World War thrills, with Mr. Weber, Pittsburgh architect. Capt. Stockman's in the U. S. studying architecture.

Recalling stirring memories of early war days in Germany, Capt. Hans Stockman, war ace, conducted Aero club members on a brief sojourn behind the scenes of the world's greatest drama in an address at the weekly luncheon yesterday.

Capt. Stockman was shot down in combat with both French and English airmen and finally, with three wounds received in action in the air, survived the war in the trenches at the head of a company of infantry. The German ace was credited with 14 victories over English and French planes.

The captain said he was sent to the front after two months of training. He declared:

"The first time I was sent out to make observations over the enemy's artillery, I couldn't even find the front lines."

Girl, Man Awaiting Hearing Over Attack

Anna Selmek, 18, and Charles Howard, 35, both of Tarentum, were to be given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace Emil C. CHRISTMAS PACKS BEING MADE UP

Workers Sort, and Pack Toys For Unfortunate Children; More Donations Needed

Santa Claus is completing his Christmas lists at the Toy Mission these days while his helpers sort and pack thousands of toys new and o'd — sent in by thoughtful men, women and children throughout the Pittsburgh district.

There is still need for toys, according to George L. Bond, founder of the Toy Mission, there being so many more poor children to take care of this year due to the distress of the unemployment situation. Any kind of a toy will serve, so long as it can be repaired. Mr. Bond and his co-workers spend hours every day fixing broken toys in the Mission headquarters, 414 Penn avenue. Donations should be left either at headquarters or at any police or fire station in the city.

Police and fire engine houses have been turned into collection stations for the Toy Mission, and the Sun-Telegraph is co-operating in the enterprise by collecting the neighborhood donations and delivering them to Mission headquarters.

Mr. Bond, in repeating his public appeal today, declared:

"There is more distress among children this year than ever before. Thousands of little tots in our public and parochial schools face disappointment due to home conditions this Christmas, and unless we are able to provide them with some little gift they will go without, and what is Christmas day without some little remembrance—even if only ever so little?"

GUILTY IN FAKE DIRECTORY PLOT

Louis C. St. Clair, 42, of 1109 Western avenue, found guilty yesterday in Criminal Court of conspiracy in soliciting advertising for a mythical official director of city and county officials, today was preparing to file a motion for a new trial. Hanging over him is a two-year parole with a one-year alternative sentence, imposed last May when he was found guilty of soliciting advertisements for an equally mythical official police guide.

Mrs. Winifred Glaser, 818 North Craig street, solicitor for St. Clair, was acquitted of conspiracy at the direction of Judge Elder W. Marshall, who tried the case.

St. Clair was convicted specifically of taking $5 from Thomas Rosen, 1713 Center avenue, for an advertisement in the alleged directory, which was never published.

Luther Jones, 3036 Glenmart avenue, a janitor in the City-County Building, was alleged to have received $15 a month from St. Clair to answer telephone calls to a number in the City-County Building, regarding the directory. His case is to be disposed of later.

The daughter, with a bullet in her back, and Harry Walker, 16, of 1250 Lincoln avenue, a delivery boy in the store, who was hit in the right knee by a stray bullet, were taken to the same hospital. The boy was later sent home.

Zimmerman, 58, who said he had been out of work, shot the women, police said, after a chase which ensued when he met them on the street. He was turned over to the homicide squad today. When arrested, he drew from his pocket a six-page confession explaining his act, police said. He said domestic difficulties forced him to shoot his wife and daughter.

The daughter, from her cot in the hospital, told police her parents had been living apart about four weeks.

McDonough, of the Department of Welfare.

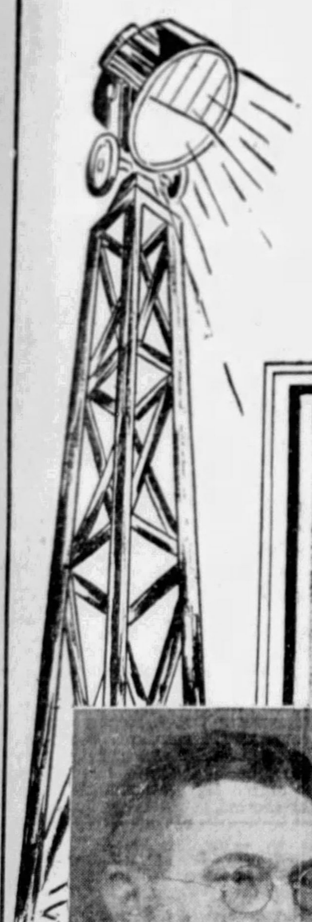
TO THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY:



The North Side for the Town Hall offers advantages far greater than those of other parts of the city. From the standpoint of cost, financing, accessibility and traffic conditions the North Side is the logical solution of the problem.

A location in the Triangle would be desirable, but it has been shown that the cost of land would make the total outlay for the improvement far in excess of the $6,000,000 bond issue. It would be unfair to the people if a second bond issue would have to be voted in order to complete the project.

The North Side site would put the Town Hall within walking distance of the downtown offices and the principal hotels, while the land could be obtained at a cost which would keep the entire project well within the limits of the appropriation.

The rivers are only a psychological barrier. All the principal streets are continued over the bridges. If the 500-foot width of the river were solid land, no one would consider the North Side to be far from the business district.

From the standpoint of traffic the North Side is better situated than Oakland. During football games and other events, traffic in Oakland becomes badly congested. The North Side site would eliminate the danger of conflict with other heavy traffic-creating activities. The North Side is one of the most beautiful parts of the city as can be seen from the fact that it was selected for the homes of the oldest and wealthiest families in the city.

The building of the Town Hall will bring about a marked revival in interest in the North Side and undoubtedly will be followed by extensive new construction of apartment houses and other buildings.

The H. J. Heinz Company has made Pittsburgh known the world over. Its products are sent to every part of the globe. While this company is privately owned, it is in reality a Pittsburgh institution. What more fitting tribute to the part Mr. Heinz has played in this city's growth could be made than the selection of a site for the Town Hall near to his plants? The North Side site for the Town Hall would make a highly appropriate setting for the business which has so greatly contributed to the world's knowledge of Pittsburgh.

COUNTY APPROVES VOTE LIST—DELETING BILL

10-Point Buck Bagged in Elk

SPEECHES FLAY PLAN AS THEY O.K. COSTS

Armstrong and McGovern Condemn and Ridicule Assessment Book Purge

A lot of oratory was spilled as county commissioners paid for striking voters' names from the assessment books of the county during the mayoralty battle two years ago. After speeches by Commissioners J. G. Armstrong and Charles C. McGovern, a bill for $1,137.75, presented by Attorneys Donald C. Anderson and Robert B. Greer, was ordered paid yesterday. They acted as representatives of the bar association, which recommended the deletion of the lists.

McGovern declared:

"This is the worst case ever perpetrated on the county. From 30,000 to 40,000 people were disfranchised and a precedent was established for bootlegging names on the assessment books. I think that it's a shame and an outrage that the county should have been sandbagged, and the Bar Association should not have permitted this imposition on the taxpayers."

Armstrong differed, saying:

"I don't think this was any bootlegging scheme. When this finally got in court before the old-time learned judges they decided that the only thing wrong was that the B and Z books should have been turned over to the treasurer's office instead of the delinquent tax collectors!"

SEEKS FORTUNE IN 'BLUE' LAW

LONDON, Dec. 12. — (AP.) — Miss Millie Orpen, a young London woman, adopted the role of "common informer" and filed writs against a number of film corporations and theaters, claiming damages of nearly $500,000.

Her action was taken under an act of 1781, which forbids Sunday amusement performances and follows upon the recent ruling of three high court judges that Sunday movies would be forbidden after December 14. She charges breaches of the act.

Miss Orpen told interviewers, however, that she was playing a lone hand in this action and was not backed by any organization.

The common informer rarely appears nowadays in English prosecutions, but has ancient standing in English law, the position having been legally regularized as long ago as the reign of Henry VII. In those days, owing to crude administration and lack of police, private citizens frequently informed against breaches of the law, receiving all or part of the fines imposed.

2 SHOPS ROBBED BY ARMED MEN

Two men who obtained $21 in the holdup of the tailor shop of Isadore Zeidenschneider at 5826 Jackson street, were being sought by East End police today.

Zeidenschneider was alone in the shop when the robbers, both armed, entered and ordered him to throw up his hands.

Two thugs entered the grocery of Boleshaw Staniszenski, 820 Seventh street, Parnassus, last night, and with drawn guns ordered the proprietor, his wife and two girl customers into a rear living room and rifled the cash register of $5. In their haste to make a getaway, police said, one of the bandits dropped his revolver and cap.

William Bryan, of 422 West street, Wilkinsburg, reported to Wilkinsburg police that his automobile had been robbed of tools and personal belongings valued at $50.

An outlaw in Scotland has no legal rights. If he returns and submits himself to the court the sentence may be rescinded.

AIR MAIL ROUTE TO NORFOLK PLANNED

Ball Lines Anticipating Extension of Postal Service To South Via Washington

Officials of the Clifford Ball Lines, recently affiliated with the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation and the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., coast-to-coast service, announced today the company is planning an air mail service from Pittsburgh to Washington with a spur to Norfolk, Va.

An application for extension of Ball's present contract from Pittsburgh to Cleveland has been on file in the Postoffice Department for several months, ever since the line became eligible for consideration under the Waters act, a bill providing a government subsidy for old operating companies. The Ball lines were extended to Washington almost a year ago and have been operating daily scheduled passenger service since.

The current Postoffice and Treasury appropriations bill carries an annual allotment of $184,507 for the line which will connect here with coast-to-coast and Chicago lines. Funds will not be available before next July under provisions of the bill.

BROWN PLEASED WITH AIRPORT PROGRESS

400 Men Work on County Field; Slope Provides Drainage Against Pools

Four hundred men are at work and "satisfactory progress" is being made on construction work at the county airport, Norman F. Brown, director of public works, reported to the county commissioners at their meeting yesterday.

The field is being sloped so surface drainage will be carried off without any pools of water gathering. From 15 to 20 acres of the surfacing has been finished. Weather barriers to prevent interruption of work during severe weather have been erected and bids advertised for the structural steel necessary for the administration buildings.

These buildings are to be erected with their roofs almost flush with the surface of the field. This is the only field in the country with this type of construction and the idea was evolved by Brooks Ross, county engineer, Brown said, and approved by the government air development bureau.

Friday Club Told About Russia

Speaking on "Russia's Growing Pains" before the Friday Morning Club in Carnegie Music Hall today, William W. White said amid all the conflicting impressions which Russia offers to the foreign observer there can be seen three very distinct lines of development motivating life in the Soviet Union. The first of these is the development of the idea of class; the second, the desire of the proletariat to build for themselves an impregnable structure as expressed in their plans for the economic development of the Soviet Union, and, third, the attempt to put the life of the peasantry on a new economic basis.

The factory workman, the speaker emphasized, is the favored person in Russia today and all who do not belong to this class (except the Intelligentsia who are allowed to work with the Proletariat until such time as the Proletariat will produce men of the professions) are looked upon as enemies.

Mr. White declared the five-year industrial plan will not bring the Communist millenium. The Communist Party will not resign from power nor will the people revolt in 1933 when the five-year plan is formally completed. Soviet economists now envision a 15-year plan. Already enough has been done that leaders can point with some pride to their industrial achievements.

In discussing the third phase of development, Mr. White spoke of collectivism and remarked that the movement always faces the menace of a famine which can undo the work of the past two years in the villages. With the peasantry on a collective basis the strength of the party will grow in the villages, but there will be a surplus of labor that must be absorbed somewhere, he said.

Competition has been done away with and theoretically the Soviet economic life should be more efficient. The danger of the party's failure, he stated, lies in its possible division, the ever-present famine menace, the inefficiency of the Russian workmen and the desire to avoid responsibility among those engineers who do not belong to the proletariat.

DESIGNERS WARN AGAINST SARTORIAL EMBELLISHMENTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Sartorial riches like other wealth must be used with discretion to be enjoyable and enjoyed. Discretion is most necessary for frocks of fine fabrics, rich colorings combined with lavish fur, otherwise a most disagreeable result will ensue. For nothing adds to the years so much as an outfit that has been made by a person who has run riot amid forgotten all sartorial restraint. People who wear such frocks usually stamp themselves of the new-rich and so find that they are never invited to the places to which they would really like to go. For a parade of wealth on a frock or through any other medium is never welcome. And so for those who have a curtailed dress budget, it is best to stick to the simple things to get the best out of them.

EVEN IF ALL OF US are not fortunate enough to be able to wear lavish frocks we can at least admire them and even get some pointers in simple elaboration, a characteristic that is very much to the fore in the lovely ensemble by Vionnet, a sketch of which is here appended. This ensemble is one of the richest and best models thrown by Vionnet who is having an enormous success this season. The coat is of dark raspberry velvet with collar, wide sleeves and pointed yoke of ermine. Like many of Vionnet's coats, the moulded line of the Empire is the inspiration for the design. The skirt is very flaring and scallops define the edge.

THE DRESS is of the palest, most delicate shade of raspberry imaginable and the material is a thin sunset crepe. Thus the ensemble link is made but the dress allows the coat to walk away with all the wealth of the outfit and relies upon smart simplicity to see it through.

* * *

THE HIGH empire bodice is bloused slightly over the waistline. The rolled edge of the decolletage forms a twist at the bottom of the low cut back and is crossed and drawn around, still twisted, to the front where it ties in a small bowknot. On a deep form-fitting yoke which makes the top of the skirt, as attached a wide, slightly trailing flounce gathered at each side of the back into a group of folds.

Mother of Twelve Regains Health

Salem woman gives credit to Vegetable Compound

HAWTHORNE'S House of Seven Gables is situated at the end of Turner Street overlooking Salem harbor. This historic neighborhood is now a Polish-American district. At 15 Turner St. live Mr. & Mrs. R. J. Kulakowski and their twelve healthy, happy children.

"But we weren't always happy," Mr. Kulakowski confided. "My wife was ailing for five years. First she seemed just tired and run down. Then she got weaker and weaker and became so crippled that we had to carry her from room to room. When I came home from work, I would find her crawling on her hands and knees. I was a motorman then on the Salem to Boston cars. One day I was telling my conductor about my wife and he suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Said it had helped his sister. Well, I got a bottle and she started taking it. We kept on until she took about eight bottles in all. By that time she was up on her feet and doing her work."

Mrs. Kulakowski's twelfth child was born on Easter Monday. "I have never lost a child," she says, "and none of them has ever been seriously ill. My oldest daughter is now in her teens, and I am giving her the Vegetable Compound, too."

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOU KEID

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Of the Broadway song hit resurgence of the last 20 years, the name of Jerome Kern is most frequently encountered on the music racks of the broadcasters.

Kern's best known song, is, of course, "Ol' Man River." It is heard regularly on the radio, on the other hand, the tunkly, "You're Here and I'm Here," written back in the days when he was a composer of interpolated songs for the Charles Frohman production, is seldom aired by the maestros.

Kern is the first of contemporary American tunesmiths to amass a million dollars. The accumulation has not deterred him from his regular practice of turning out catchy melodies. His most tuneful songs since he set George Ade's "College Widow" to music under the title of "Leave It to Jane," were to our opinion, those he provided for "Show Boat." We have never heard a previously mediocre tune from his pianos.

Kern One of Most Adroit of Musicians.

Kern is one of the most adroit of musicians. He can do more with an octave than most songwriters can do with an entire keyboard. Indeed, he can do more with four or five notes than most of them. He rewrote "You're Here and I'm Here" into three or four different song hits.

"When the blues tide rolled one of its ires to engulf Broadway, Kern blended an original tune with "Blue Bells of Scotland," and labeled his composition "Left All Alone Again Blues." Unlike most blues it possessed an ingratiating melody and kept the town whistling all one winter.

One of the most sentimental of Broadway's ballads was his "They Didn't Believe Me." It stills tumbles out of the loudspeakers. Kern's greatest song, however, is "Ol' Man River." In the repertory now of most of the maritime soloists, it is rapidly becoming a classic of the Negro "spiritual" school. It is already reckoned by the music historians as the foremost of all song tributes to the Mississippi.

Kern is many years older than his most successful contemporaries, Gerswhin, Rodgers and Youmans, but his ability to tickle the eardrums does not stale nor wither. Before he surrenders completely to Hollywood I should like to see him in one more partnership with Marilyn Miller and Dr. Ziegfeld.

Broadcasters don't make the front page often. They don't attack enough. Nothing like a good attack to attract attention.

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS, LOCAL AMUSEMENT CHAT AND STUDIO NOTES

Wedding Bells Indicate Romance Continues In Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.

Despite the stock market and other ills, love goes on as usual in Hollywood.

During the year there have been 17 important film marriages, and possibly others that I have forgotten.

Reading the list, perhaps should be Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, whose wedding was one of the social events of the season. Other well-known stars who have married matrimony include Sally Eilers and Hoot Gibson, Dolores Del Rio and Cedric Gibbons, Loretta Young and Grant Withers (secret elopement), June Clyde and Clarence Thornton Freeland, Alice Day and Jack Cohn, Dorothy Lee and James Fidler, and Lewis Stone and Hazel Wolf.

Bebe Daniels

Among the lesser known players may be listed Ethlyn Claire, who married Ernest Westmore, the make-up artist; Jocelyn Lee, who wed Luther Reed, the director (it's all over now); Dixie Lee, who took the vows with Bing Crosby, one of the rhythm boys, and Jack Garrick, who put the ring on Harriett Bennett's finger.

Louis B. Mayer's two daughters, Irene and Edith, have been married to David Selznick and Ben Goetz.

Other marriages include those of Michael Curtiz, the director, and Bess Meredyth, the scenarist; Frank Tuttle, the director, and Tanya Actron, and Bernie Fineman, the supervisor, and Margaret DeMille. Oh, yes, and there have been 36 major divorces.

SUCH IS FAME

Returning from Europe, Jascha Heifetz gave a concert for the ship's benefit fund. The same night he won a ping-pong tournament.

As the noted violinist stood by the rail the next morning, a fellow passenger approached him.

"I want to compliment you on your playing," he said.

Heifetz replied modestly.

A COMING EVENT

Though nothing is set as yet, Clarence Brown is reading the script of Wallace Beery's next picture, "Bugle Sounds," and one hears that he will direct the popular star.

Another important rumor is that Marie Dressler, who co-starred with Beery in "Min and Bill," also will be in "Bugle Sounds."

You may recall that this story originally was intended for the late Lon Chaney. George Hill went to Morocco and shot numerous atmospheric scenes for the picture.

I NOTE THAT—

Radio Pictures has signed an actress named Miss Judge . . . . Local newspapermen and women are working in "Fires of Youth" at Universal. This is Monta Bell's story. . . . Grant Withers is heading east to make personal appearances. . . . Ann Harding has had to temporarily quit work on "East Lynne," due to laryngitis. . . . Frances McCoy sprained her ankle getting out of a rumble seat. . . . C. B. DeMille is back at the studio after his recent sojourn in the hospital. . . . Dimitri Tiomkin, the composer, won a novel bet on the recent U. S. C.-Notre Dame fracas. Freddie Fralick, the agent, agreed to take Tiomkin on as a client if the Irish won. Freddie makes it a rule only to handle eight people. Now he has nine.

Stanley, Enright Plan Local Revues

Prententious local talent juvenile shows will be given in the Enright and Stanley theaters, December 18 and 19, respectively. Bob Alton, New York dance instructor and show producer, is in charge of the revues. Mr. Alton says that the kiddies procured include dancers, singers, adagio dancers, acrobats, and comedians. These kiddie revues will be presented in conjunction with Dick Powell and Ed Lowery's regular stage shows.

PHANTOM SHIP SAILS INTO ETERNITY IN WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Outward Bound," screen version of the smart stage drama of the same name is the new feature in the Warner. It is a movie trip beyond the grave.

The characters are dead persons who are sailing an uncharted sea. The setting is an ocean liner, a sort of phantom ship headed for an unknown port. The time is—well, eternity.

There are seven passengers—a tag financier, a charwoman, an aristocratic lady, a never-do-well youth, a clergyman and two nobodies, sweethearts in life and in death. The crew numbers but one, a steward.

AS CHILD HE PRAYS

The tag financier is defiant, the charwoman is bewildered, the aristocratic lady is snobbish, the never-do-well is drunk with liquor and fear, the sweethearts are calm in their love, and the clergyman finds the only prayer he can say is the one he learned as a child.

A strange film! Who would expect to find the Judgment Seat in the lounge room of an ocean liner? The thought is absurd. But it isn't as presented in this drama. There is reality in its unrealness.

UNCANNY SINCERITY

The cast is highly capable. There is an uncanny sincerity about several of the portrayals. Special praise is due Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Beryl Mercer and Alec Francis.

Those looking for the usual movie heroics and clinches best stay away. It is a film for theatergoers who can think; for theatergoers who have the eyes to "see."

LOIS MORAN; POWELL REVUE IN ENRIGHT

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Dick Powell continues to prove the "life of the show" out in the Enright. His personality and his popularity go a long way to pulling the stage revues in that theater over.

His new show, "In Florida," features Sunshine Sammy, the little blackface Our Gang boy; a couple neat Negro steppers and Marjorie Hines, personality girl.

Mr. Powell sings a song or so and mixes up with the Enright Rockets. For his trouble, the rocketing girls carry him off stage.

Lois Moran and Phillips Holmes are on the screen in "The Dancers." Its action moves from Canadian lumber camps to aristocratic London drawing rooms. There is a dance hall girl in Canada and a society debutante in England, so you see Mr. Holmes has a time of it. It looks to us like Mr. Holmes and Miss Moran both have acting talents that should win them better stories.

GUILD PRODUCTION IN COMING PLAYS

The cast of "In the Meantime" includes Glenn Anders, Linda Watkins, Frederick Perry, Josephine Hull, Harriet MacGibbon, Jay and Allen Harold Vermilyea, Robert Strange and about 30 others. The Theater Guild play comes to the Nixon next week.

John Drinkwater's comedy, "Bird in Hand," comes to the Shubert-Alvin next Monday night for a week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. This is the first comedy that Mr. Drinkwater has written, and marks a distinct departure from his serious dramas, such as "Abraham Lincoln" and "Mary Stuart."

"Daddy Dumplins," the leading character in the play of the same name, to be produced by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, is a merry old soul—and kindly. Markham Arbuckle played the role in the original production in the Republic Theater, New York.

Mix shortening and sugar and beat until creamy. Add egg, milk and molasses, and the flour sifted with baking powder, spices and salt. Beat well, add figs and currants mixed with ½ cup flour. Pour into greased mold and steam 3 hours. Serve with any chosen sauce.

FROSTED COCOANUT SURPRISE—Ingredients, 2 cups cream, 12 marshmallows, ½ cup crushed diced pineapple, drained, ½ cup chopped candied cherries; a cup cocoanut, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few drops almond extract, dash of salt.

GINGERBREAD BANANA SHORTCAKE—Sift together 1¾ cups of flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda. Cream 3 tablespoons shortening, add ½ cup sugar gradually, then 1 egg beaten and ½ cup molasses. Add dry ingredients and mix well. Lastly, add ½ cup boiling water. Beat well and pour in 2 greased layer cake tins. Bake in a moderate oven 20 to 30 minutes. When slightly warm put sweetened whipped cream and sliced bananas between the layers and on top.

PORK LIVER LOAF—One pound liver, ¼ pound ground pork, ¼ cup bread crumbs, ½ cup tomato, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Drop liver in boiling water for 2 minutes, remove skin, grind. Mix all ingredients and form into a loaf. Bake in a greased baking pan and bake for 1 hour in a slow oven (275 degrees). Cover while baking.

JELLIED APPLE SAUCE—One tablespoon of gelatine, ½ cup of cold water, 1 cup of sugar, 1 cup of water, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 1 cup of strained apple sauce, 10 to 12 maraschino cherries.

Soak the gelatine in cold water. Make a syrup by boiling for 10 minutes the sugar and the water. Pour the boiling syrup over the soaked gelatine and mix well. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and spices, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add egg. Add oatmeal and flour, alternately with milk, mixing well. Drop by teaspoons on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 18 to 20 minutes. You'll then have four dozen cookies, but not one too many!

With the last few stirs add 1 cup each chopped nuts and sliced dates. Divide the mixture into 3 parts, form into rolls, wrap in waxed paper and place in the refrigerator. When thoroughly chilled slice very thin with a sharp knife. Bake in a hot oven 400 degrees. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Does Hubby Have Right to 'Step Out With the Boys?"

Should marriage close the door on 31 Old Friends, and lock Mom 'n' Dad up with no company but each other?

Does Little Woman thinks it should six years ago, when she was the Only Girl, and seemed to Dee just too wonderful to be true, the Big Boy was flattered when she looked into his eyes and cooed, "But dearest, I don't want you to go around with those rough boys! They're not good enough for you! I want you with me!"

It was all jake—then. But now it's beginning to give him the willies. Listen—

"Dear Miss Martin:

Feels Like Prisoner

"I think that's great advice you give people, and I have yet to disagree with you. So I'm coming to you with one to mull over, if you get time.

"Here's the big argument. My wife thinks that I should never go out with any of my men friends. And, if I do, she seems to take it as a personal insult.

"It began long ago, when we first started going together. Then, fool that I was, it gave me a big kick. I thought it showed how fond she was of me.

"Well, that was six years ago. And now, after nearly six years of marriage, I'm beginning to feel like I was in the lockup or something. And I'm getting terribly fed up with it.

"In all the time we've been married I have never been out but twice without her. And, to tell the truth, I like to take her out. She's a cute little trick and knows how to dress, and I'm proud of her. I admit I made a wrong start in taking her everywhere I went. But I love her and I have always wanted to play the game 100 per cent on the up-and-up. But I think I'm entitled to a little liberty to call my soul my own.

Thinks She Is Abused

"When I even mention taking an evening out with the boys, why she immediately gets all 'het up' and acts like I wanted to commit arson or something. Fires remarks at me like, 'Why not go out with me? Isn't my company better than the company of a lot of men?' And so on 'far into the night.'

"Sure, her company is better than the company of all the other women and men in the world. But don't we go to at least two shows together each week, take motor trips each week-end, and play golf and what-not in between times? And isn't too much of one thing too much for anybody?

"Bess is good company, and she's smart, and I like to talk to her, but I get a rest now and then to see some of the boys I used to know, and to watch them play cards or bowl, or enjoy some other innocent pleasure. And I like to swap ideas with them, and get a good earful of talk about old times . . . and new, too, for that matter.

"But I'd rather stay at home, almost, than to go through with one of the cyclones that immediately arises if I admit I'd like to see the boys . . . or to listen to her nagging for days afterwards about my having abused her.

"And that isn't all. My business has suffered from losing contacts that I made before marriage . . . and from never making any new ones with men I might have for friends if it weren't for this funny notion that Bess has.

Need Outside Friends

"Frankly, I'm getting sick and tired of it. Do you think Bess is right? I know lots of women will agree with her. But should a man cut himself off from other men . . . or a woman from other women, just because of marriage? It seems to me that she is all wrong and that it is just a streak of selfishness in her that makes her act that way. Am I wrong—or is she?

"DONALD F."

Who's wrong?

The Missus Don—and she's going to discover so plenty and prodo, unless she gets wise to herself and loosens the hobbles.

No married couple can stay healthy or happy if they cut themselves off from life. Walled-in spirits stagnate as surely as walled-in water. Two people aren't "enough" for each other—no matter how deeply they love. They need outside friends, outside interests . . . and they need intervals of absence from each other, so they can keep a healthy perspective on life.

And that goes for the Missus as well as for you, Big Boy. Her life is being wrecked as surely as yours—though she may not realize it. You'll be about as interesting to each other soon as a wad of last year's gum. Better snap out of it while the snapping is good.

All of which will probably make a lot of mamas mucho mad! All right, lady—here's your chance to work off steam!

Do you, or do you not, favor hobbies for hubbies?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Don't Neglect Childhood Ailments

Recently I visited a state asylum devoted to the care of deaf and dumb children. Frankly, I was amazed at the number of children housed in this institution and the the long waiting list for admission.

DR COPELAND

In this age of preventive medicine more attention has been given to deafness in children and its possible prevention. Eventually we shall see a reduction in the amount of deafness in children, but this will take time.

Deafness is a serious condition, not only from the point of view of the comfort of the individual, but from an economic one. There are few occupations open to those with this disability. Ultimately the victims become a burden to their families or to the state. This problem has been met to a considerable extent by the establishment of schools for the deaf. These are usually under state supervision, but many operate under private charter.

Deafness may exist at birth, or it may be acquired at a later time. In persons who are born deaf there is usually very little that can be done in the way of relief. In this type of deafness the cause is usually an imperfect development of the hearing apparatus, just as in the dumb, there is an imperfect development of the speaking apparatus.

Much can be done for the other type of deafness, the acquired type. Our greatest hope, even in this type, lies in prevention. Since most cases of acquired deafness begin in childhood, we must begin our campaign of prevention in this age.

The most common period for the acquirement of deafness in children is between the ages of 3 and 5. It is at this time that most children have the so-called common "childhood diseases." Unfortunately, these diseases are treated too lightly and often are entirely ignored as far as medical attention is concerned.

Scarlet fever and measles are most likely to result in ear complications. All too often they leave behind some permanent damage to the hearing.

Very frequently enlarged tonsils and adenoids in children appear upon the removal of the offending tonsils and adenoids.

By a reduction in the number of infectious diseases of childhood, we will materially reduce acquired deafness. The prevalence of diphtheria and scarlet fever in North America has greatly decreased. To a great extent this can be attributed to the use of toxin-antitoxin treatment and various inoculations.

There are still many, many parents who think it dangerous to inoculate their children against disease. As I view it, this attitude of mind is a mistake. The danger attached to the protective measures against these diseases is extremely slight. The possibility of a child acquiring deafness as a result of one of these ailments is far greater.

The future civilization will appear brighter when we reduce such distressing and unfortunate disabilities as acquired deafness in children. This cannot be accomplished by the physician and local health bureaus alone. Mothers, fathers and the children, too, must help in this campaign. It is only by universal co-operation that the campaign against deafness will be successful.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, December 13

A rather humdrum and routine state of affairs is presaged to characterize this day, according to the minor lunar transits. The Neptune sextile to the moon assists new enterprises and gives an accent of the novel, subtle or conniving to developments, and the feeble Mars' position bespeaks irritability and impetuosity, which may provoke inharmony and failure.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which a great deal depends upon their own efforts and enterprise. These may lead in directions of fresh undertakings, with methods of secrecy, stratagem or conspiracy winning against direct and above-board action. Be careful with tongue and temper.

Husband's Love No Help to Common-Law Wife in Will Contests—Fay King

By FAY KING

For over 10 years they were known as a most devoted couple. It was somewhat of a shock to many to learn, after he died in her arms, that there had been no marriage ceremony. They were not legally married.

Of course, in nearly all states, when a man and woman have lived together for a year or more and are known as man and "wife," this union becomes acknowledged as a common-law marriage.

But common-law wives, especially where a fortune is left and the man's relatives are reluctant to acknowledge her rights, have a long and often futile fight on their hands.

If he was free to marry her, why didn't he? He didn't love her enough is the usual conclusion.

Mary Requests Party Be Held a Day Earlier Than Planned

Mary's happiness over her party had banished all her fears concerning Phillip Veritzen. Lillian and I saw that and were quick to conceal our own forebodings from her. I no sooner had met Lillian's worried glance as Mary said that she was sure she must be dreaming the plans for the dance which Mrs. Underwood was outlining, than I plunged into speech, voicing the first idea which came into my head.

"This all sounds very wonderful," I said, "but what about 'the eats' as our youngsters would say? The meals here are unusually good, wholesome and well-cooked, but if they are not used for dances——"

"I never have told you, then," Lillian rejoined with a smile, "about the life history of Mr. Sobel who has charge of the dining room."

"No, but I shall be very glad to hear it."

"For twenty years he was in personal charge of every banquet of note served at the—" She named one of the fashionable hotels of a generation ago. "You should hear his wife tell of the last bachelor dinner given by young Sackett to his ushers. His bride-to-be—you know she was of old New York society while young Sackett had only his millions, no family or background—came down and supervised every detail of the feast. When Mrs. Sobel lifts her hands and says: 'Ach! to think now they're divorced, and he has disinherited their daughter for marrying a man he considers beneath him socially,' you feel as if you were listening to a Cassandra wailing over the decadence of New York society. But make no mistake about Mr. Sobel's ability as a caterer. Just tell him what you want, and he'll do the rest. Your food and your service will be impeccable. Your decorations, of course, can be as elaborate as your purse demands."

"Auntie Madge!" Mary's tones were suddenly shrilly protesting. "Isn't this going to cost an awful lots of money? You mustn't—"

I put my hand over her mouth.

"Don't tell me what I must or must not do," I told her with burlesqued sternness. "That is something I do not permit from anyone. You have nothing to do with the cost of this. Your uncle and I will attend to that. This is your first party, and we want to make it as pretty as we can. Let me see! What are the possibilities of that dining room from a decorative standpoint?"

I closed my eyes and visualized the long room with its paneled woodwork in cream, its tiny raised balcony in one corner, its clever pretense of windows, its quaint shelves above each white panel, shelves which now held vases of imitation flowers, its old-fashioned chandeliers of tinkling crystals, so sedulously imitated by some of the new cinema palaces.

"It's too big for ropes of ground pine from the corners of the ceiling to the central chandelier," I said. "We can have that at the farmhouse. But we can have great branches of holly and ground pine and laurel at every panel, we can have holly and mistletoe depending from all the chandeliers, on the brackets we can have pots of red roses, and in front of the balcony where the musicians will be stationed we can have a big Christmas tree."

"You can come out of the ether now," Lillian said briskly as I opened my eyes. "That's a very nifty dream, and the best of it is that it can be made reality. The balcony is in the rear of the room which is rarely used, as I told you, and the Christmas tree and all the other decorations there can be put up in the morning. Then in the afternoon while the dining room is closed they can do the rest of the room and your dinner table. How will you decorate that, with orchids?"

Her voice was blandly innocent, but I flushed and Mary giggled, checking the giggle back the next second with a frightened look.

"I'm—I'm sorry, Auntie Madge," she stammered, as a little child might have done, "but Mrs. Underwood sounded so funny."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Autographed Photograph

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Please tell me, when mailing personal Christmas cards, would it look well to remember the family physician? I received a very nice personal greeting from him and his wife when I was under his care. As I do not know his wife, would it be better to address it to him only?

2. I wonder if you could also tell me a few nice things in regard to "friendship" or "good times" to write on a photograph when giving photographs to close friends? I am rather tired of seeing "Sincerely," "Yours truly" and "Lovingly." I want to see something a bit different. MRS. E. N.

1. Yes, this would be a gracious and thoughtful thing for you to do, to send a Christmas greeting card to your physician and his wife.

And be sure to address it to both him and his wife. This is a very important rule of etiquette—a very important rule—that we address a greeting card of this kind, as we would address a formal invitation or announcement, to both husband and wife, even if we do not know both. It is the married couple courtesy.

2. It is now more often considered that the photograph is more personal when no message written on it. Although at first this may seem strange and contradictory to you, it really isn't. When we know a friend well enough to give her or him our photograph, it does seem curious—doesn't it?—for us to have to write a message on the photograph. Naturally the friend knows of our friendly devotion, and writing it on the photograph seems a bit over-done.

However, if you do wish to write something on the photograph, I suggest that you write only the names—that is,

Such a simple greeting on the photograph can be interpreted by our friend according to her own feeling about the friendship.

An Ill-Mannered Escort

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl returns home in an automobile with a young man, shouldn't he escort her to the door, not leave her at the machine? I think he should, but I have a friend who never walks to the door with me, but always leaves me at the car. Which is correct? DOROTHY.

I hope that you can think of some gracious way of indicating to him that it really is only good form for him to walk with you to your door, and not leave you at the door of the car. It isn't easy, I realize, to make this kind of suggestion, much less to do it graciously, but I am sure that you will think of a clever way of doing this.

Eggs of Great Value to Convalescents

Popularity as Food Result of Their Digestibility And Economic Importance.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City. United States Senator From New York.

Eggs are used in every household. In some form or other, they are in daily use. Indeed, they are as frequently used as bread, milk and potatoes.

Eggs are in popular demand because of their economic importance. In concentrated form they carry great wealths of food. In addition, they are easily prepared.

Ease of digestion is another virtue. They are used universally as a meat substitute. They carry the values of meat with far less waste.

Eggs are easily digested, however prepared. Cooking influences the digestibility very little and does not harm the nutritive value. Hard boiled and soft boiled eggs bring about the same response from the digestive organs. The hard boiled egg is somewhat slower in leaving the stomach.

RANK NEXT TO MILK

Scrambled eggs leave the stomach more slowly than hard boiled eggs. If prepared with water instead of butter the digestive action is more active. If eggs are properly fried, little discomfort should be experienced. This is the only form in which eggs are served that may cause trouble.

Eggs rank next to milk in food value. They are of great value in the diet of children and adults who are convalescing from an illness. In adults raw eggs are used where forced feeding is required.

The yolk of the egg is more nutritious than the white part of the egg. In the yolk are contained the vitamins and general elements which make eggs so valuable for us.

PROTEINS WORTHY

The proteins found in the white of eggs are of the best quality. It will be remembered that proteins are the substances of food which aid in the repairing of the tissues of the body. They are the substances that give strength to the body. This, in short, is what eggs actually do.

It is always advisable to buy eggs of the best quality. Cold storage eggs are not to be ignored when fresh eggs are not to be obtained. Eggs that are clean, kept in cold storage under proper supervision are satisfactory. Both eggs are far superior to the so-called fresh eggs that have not been properly handled.

Fortunately, transportation facilities are improving every day. Even in the crowded cities fresh eggs can be had every day.

FEATHER TITLE MAY CHANGE HANDS

UNLESS THE FISTIC dope bucket is again kicked over, or Kid Chocolate is still in the throes of the slump that evidently was gripping him recently when Fidel La Barba gave him the only severe beating he ever received in his Queensberry career, a new world featherweight champion may be crowned in New York tonight. Battling Battalino is to enter the ring with Chocolate for a 15-round bout in defense of the 126-pound title, which he has kept securely locked up since he won it from Andre Routis on September 23, 1929, and on the face of the form sheets the Cuban Negro challenger appears to hold such a margin of superiority as to indicate a strong possibility that the scepter may change hands.

Battling Battalino

Nothing is certain in the fight game these days. It has been a great year for short-enders, particularly in New York, where La Barba, Tony Canzoneri and Billy Petrolle scored surprising victories over Chocolate, Al Singer and Jimmy McLarnin while fighting as second choices. Perhaps, too, you can make a hunch for Battalino out of the fact that La Barba, Canzoneri and Petrolle are all of Italian descent and so is the present wearer of the featherweight crown. In view of past upsets, it wouldn't be safe to deny Battalino a chance, but with due allowance for everything Chocolate looks like the probable winner if near his true form.

REGARDLESS OF THE outcome, it is pretty safe to predict that the winner will not rule over the featherweight division for any great length of time. This prospect of a short reign is due not to the fact that La Barba is waiting for a crack at the victor and is likely to defeat either of tonight's principals, but to indications that both Chocolate and Battalino soon will outgrow the class.

Even now Battalino finds it difficult to make the weight. That may explain why he consented to defend the championship after sidestepping challengers for many months. He had to hurry to cash in on his title, and may not be able to defend it again if he retains it. It's the same with Chocolate. Even his manager, Luis Gutierrez, admits that if Chocolate wins the championship tonight he may never defend it. The Keed is 10 pounds heavier than he was two years ago and is still filling out. He leaves next week for Havana, not to return until February, and by the time he is ready to resume ring operations he may have to follow the example of Kid Kaplan, relinquish the title and cast his lot with the lightweights.

ANOTHER LEATHER DEBATE of more than ordinary interest is on the bills for tonight, with Young Stribling and Tuffy Griffiths booked to tangle for 10 rounds in Chicago. It looks like a bout that may go the limit, with the chances favoring a decision for Stribling.

Tuffy Griffiths

Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, has been training and coaching Griffiths for this fight, but it is doubtful if he has added enough to Tuffy's stock in trade to enable him to beat Stribling. There is no denying the Southerner's ability when he extends himself, and as this is a bout that he will have to win in order to stay in the heavyweight title running, it is probable that he will be found showing enough to bring him home in front.

ANY SORT OF definite development meaning an end to the tiresome wrangle between the major baseball leagues and five minor organizations over the draft question would have been welcomed by the weary fans. So even the open break that resulted yesterday when the majors turned down the minors' final counter proposition came as a relief. Perhaps they'll be able to get somewhere now after a definite stand that breaks off business relations, which they certainly would not have been able to do by keeping up the fruitless series of conferences, proposals and counter proposals which had been going on for years. Eventually they'll get together, no doubt, as each side needs the other, and neither is in business for the purpose of losing money. The best interests of the players, the only item that concerns the public, are to be protected by the draft system which the majors insist that the minors accept, and the stand just taken by the main loopers is the surest means of bringing about that acceptance.

FROM ALL INDICATIONS, the sudden illness that recently forced the removal of Jim Collins, new Cardinal first baseman, to a hospital in Rochester, N. Y., for an operation, has at least temporarily blocked the deal that was to have transferred Jim Bottomley from the Redbirds to the Cubs for next season.

Though it was understood that the sale of Bottomley to the Bruins had been practically closed, the new possibility that Collins might not be available for next year is said to have caused the Cardinal owners to back-pedal. So they made the price on Bottomley prohibitive by boosting it to $150,000. The Chicago club was willing to pay $100,000, it is said, but Manager Rogers Hornsby says it will not meet the new figure and that negotiations for Bottomley have been called off.

HORNSBY ALSO MAKES it known that he intends to return to his old position at second base for the Cubs next year, so that the majors after all will have at least one playing manager. "I have rested my legs this fall, they feel pretty good, and I'm sure I'll be able to play," says Rogers.

Rogers Hornsby

With the Bottomley deal dropped, Hornsby announces that Charley Grimm will be retained for first base, with English at shortstop, Bell at third base and Cuyler Wilson and Stephenson in the outfield. He says Bush, Malone, Root, Smith and Teachout will do the bulk of the pitching and that he will carry three other left-handers besides Teachout in Petty, May and Sweetland.

COAST REPORTS SAY that Babe Herman, Brooklyn outfielder and star slugger, has sent back unsigned from his home in Glendale, Cal., a contract calling for $15,000, declaring his salary had been cut $4,000 and that he would not sign unless he received "more than the $19,000 he drew down in 1930." The distinction of being the first holdout can't be taken away from Herman, but Robin officials say there are a few flaws in his reported statement. In the first place, he did not receive $19,000 for his services last season, his salary in reality having been $15,000.

ACCORDING TO THE Brooklyn chiefs, before Babe left Brooklyn for home last October he demanded a salary of $20,000 for 1931. He was offered $18,000. The club was willing to split the difference and boosted the ante to $19,000, or $4,000 more than the Babe pulled down for 1930, but he rejected this and went home without having signed.

A contract for $19,000 was then mailed to Herman, but he sent it back unsigned and without comment. President York then adopted different tactics. He lopped $4,000 off the offer and sent Babe a new contract that called for $15,000, the same sum he received last season. It is this second contract that Babe has just refused to sign.

HERMAN IS NOT the only player with whom the Brooklyn club may have a salary argument this year before it succeeds in getting a contract signed. Pitcher Dizzy Vance is another. Last season his

MIDDIES GIVEN GREAT OVATION IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The men from Annapolis, calm and confident, were here today for battle with the Army tomorrow on the Yankee Stadium's battle-torn gridiron.

There's an air of careless ease about the 43 powerful Midshipmen who form the squad that will tackle the Cadets for the sake of charity in the first game the service schools of Uncle Sam have played since the break in relations in 1927. They look and act just like Army did before heading West to shock Notre Dame, and all but tie the greatest eleven of the year. They are the underdogs, and they feel they have everything to win and nothing to lose. They have a hunch they're going to surprise everybody, the Army most of all.

CROWD GOES NAVY

Up from the caverns under the Penn Station they filed last night, trim and big in their blue uniforms, and into one of the most spontaneous receptions any football squad ever received here. The Fife and Drum Corps from the U. S. S. Pensacola, and the band from the Brooklyn Navy Yard greeted them with roaring "Anchors Aweigh," until the echoes rolled up and down the station and the big tri-motored airplane on exhibition on the main floor almost took off in the wind.

Crowds rushed down from the streets to join the relatives and Navy men that formed the nucleus of the gathering, and the Negro porters, the redcaps and the innocent bystanders alike all went wildly and noisily Navy under the spur of the blaring brasses.

The crowd shouted for Bill Ingram. The head coach was pulled from the procession, lifted above the crowd and forced to tell them that Navy would do its talking only tomorrow afternoon. All in all, it was a grand reception, a colorful flareback to the ancient rivalry of the Cadets and the Midshipmen, and a pleasing prelude to the temporary renewal of the nation's greatest single football feud.

With his squad safely tucked away in a nearby hotel, Navy Bill was able to settle down and talk the situation over. He professes little hope of beating Army tomorrow, but the coat of pessimism that covers his optimism is thin, indeed.

INGRAM HOPEFUL

"This team is made up of the finest boys I've ever seen," he said, "but I'm afraid they just haven't got the strength to beat Army. We'll give them a great fight, and I'll be satisfied with that.

"Don't rate Navy on their showing against Pennsylvania last Saturday. They did everything right that day and Penn did everything wrong. We haven't had another day like that all season and we probably won't Saturday. I hope they surprise me, but I don't think we can win."

Thus Navy Bill, with just the sign of a twinkle in his eyes, propounded his little white lies and then scouted around to see that all his big youngsters were tucked away safely for the night.

Ingram isn't sure about his starting backs, but the entire squad is in fine physical condition with the single exception of Joe Tschirgi, one of his good backs, who has a bad leg, but will see some action. Lou Kirn, plunging ace of the Midshipmen, has his face all plastered up as a result of contact with a Pennsylvania knee last Saturday, but is otherwise healthy. Joe Hurley probably will share the halfback post with him, with Hagberg at quarter and Johnny Gannon rounding out the starting quartet.

IRISH GAME IN MOVIES

Largest Network To Broadcast Service Game

The largest network ever linked for an athletic contest will broadcast the Army-Navy charity game in New York tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 12:30 o'clock. This link of stations will include Station KDKA, which has completed plans for an international broadcast, its short-wave facilities carrying the reports of the game to the remote parts of the world.

The game will begin at 1:30 o'clock. Graham McNamee, the announcer for NBC, will go on the air with a description of the pro-game activities, including marching formations of the midshipmen and cadets, at 1 o'clock.

Ted Husing and Knute Rockne will collaborate on the Army-Navy game broadcast that will be heard from WJAS. Station WCAE also will radio the game.

WARNER WINS OVER DRAGON

Johnny Warner, Clairton's clever bantamweight, copped the decision over the rugged Joey Dragon, of Cincinnati, in the main bout of 10 rounds last night at the Palisades, McKeesport, winning seven of the rounds by handsome margins, dropping two and holding the Ohio battler even in another.

After weathering a tough first round, Warner came back nicely in the second and soon took the play away from Dragon by his clever boxing. Time and again Johnny stabbed the visitor with his rasping left, and an occasional cross of the right caused Dragon to clinch more than once. From the second until the eighth the fight was decidedly in Warner's favor.

TRIES FOR COMEBACK

Dragon flashed a bit in the ninth to earn a shade in this session, and then stood toe-to-toe with Warner in the tenth and slugged away. Both fighters landed hard punches in the final session, which was practically even. Warner came in at 123 pounds, being four pounds heavier than Dragon.

Nick Perlick, heavyweight member of the Clairton police force, attempted a comeback after a layoff of about three years, but picked a tough opponent in Frank Novak, of the North Side, and was knocked out in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round semi-final. Conceding more than 31 pounds in weight, Novak went after his heftier opponent from the first sound of the bell, and while he had difficulty in breaking through Perlick's guard at first, he soon found the range of Nick's chin and floored the Clairton cop twice in the third for counts of nine.

PERLICK STOPPED

Perlick came back after the knockdowns and practically held his own in the fourth and fifth sessions, but when he was floored again in the sixth, he stayed down on one knee until Referee Al Grayber finished the count. Perlick weighed 225 pounds, against 194¾ for Novak.

Teddy Welsh, of McKeesport, bested Al Munro, local Negro slugger, in a fast six-round bout that preceded the Perlick-Novak go. It was Welsh's first appearance in the Tube City ring in a long time and he showed considerable improvement in winning from the tough Munro.

Don Frazier, of Pittsburgh, won easily from Steve Senich, in the opener, taking the decision of both judges, Jock Simco, of McKeesport, and Red Robinson, of Pittsburgh.

Charley Paddock Weds Childhood Sweetheart

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Charles W. Paddock, once known as the world's fastest human, was married to Mrs. Neva Prisk Malaby at the home of the bride's parents here last night in a ceremony which culminated a friendship begun in childhood.

The bride is the daughter of C. H. Prisk, newspaper publisher, and was divorced two years ago from Z. T. Malaby, Jr. She is 26 years old.

BASEBALL WAR GROWS; GAP WIDENS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Definitely alienated from the majors, the three big minor leagues, American Association, International and Pacific Coast circuits, hoped today to build their organizations to the point where they can challenge the baseball supremacy of the National and American leagues.

Charles H. Strub, president of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, thinks the minors, in three or four years, can so develop their circuits as to compete on equal terms with the two major leagues.

The program that the minors must follow to achieve this is fourfold as Strub sees it.

WANT COMMISSIONER

First, the minors must have some sort of court of final arbitration, such as is represented now in the person of Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball.

Secondly, the big minors must adopt toward the smaller minors the same attitude the majors have in the past in the way of leadership and help.

Thirdly, the big minors must see that, in order to protect their own investments, they must offer financial and material assistance to leagues of smaller classifications.

Fourth, the minors, particularly the Class AA circuits, must build themselves up in the next three or four years where they can offer themselves to the public as new major league circuits.

AFTER WORLD SERIES

Strub pointed out that the three Class AA organizations have a far wider distribution than the majors, covering as they do the country from the East coast to the West. He believes that the big minors, by keeping their stars instead of selling them to the majors, can develop within a few years to leagues of major classification, in fact if not in name.

He added that it was his belief that the majors, with their stars growing older and no longer replaced by youngsters who used to come in steadily from the Class AA minors, will have dropped so in standard of play that they will not be able to compete with the Class AA teams who will, in the meantime, have hung onto their stars and developed them.

Most cities represented in the three big monors, he went on, are plenty large enough to support major league baseball. He hopes eventually to secure world series recognition for the three Class AA organizations, believing the public will come to demand it.

SPLIT WIDE OPEN

The majors, on the other hand, perhaps will see to it that certain Class A leagues are strengthened to AA standards, and then select these circuits for developing their players. The majors still will be able to draft players from the minors just as they have in the past, but the fact remains that most major league ball players have had to have the benefit of Class A competition before they were ready for the majors.

The wide open split between the two groups came over the question of optioning out players for seasoning, and the price to be paid for athletes selected in the draft.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 12.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, who have been setting an exceptionally fast pace in the International League race in recent weeks, will make their first appearance before local hockey fans here tonight when they meet the Tecumsehs in an International loop battle.

The locals defeated the Jackets, 3-0, in the season opener, in Pittsburgh, but many changes have been made in the lineup of the invaders since that time, and a close game is expected tonight.

The Yellow Jackets are handicapped by the absence of Duke McCurry, defense man, out with a broken rib, and the locals will start the fray without the services of Len Grosvenor, star center, recently recalled by Ottawa.

REISE TO PLAY

Steve Yankoski, who wore Pittsburgh livery until early this week, will be at one of the defense points for London, and Leo Reise, who was sent to the Jackets in the deal, will provide relief for Pittsburgh's guards. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		London.

LOCAL GAME POSTPONED

Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local hockey club, today announced that the Yellow Jackets' game with the London Tecumsehs, which was to have been played here next Friday, has been postponed to January 10.

Tonight the Jackets are to appear in London, Sunday in Detroit, Tuesday in Buffalo, Wednesday in Syracuse and Saturday of next week in Cleveland. Schooley feels that five battles within eight days is enough for any club, and arranged to have the game here postponed despite the fact that it leaves Pittsburgh without a hockey game next week.

The Jackets' next home game will be with the Windsor Bulldogs, on December 23.

DETROIT 3-1 VICTOR

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Mickey Roach's Buffalo Bisons ran into a heap of trouble here last night when the league leaders, playing for the breaks as is their custom, saw a break go against them in the form of a penalty and, while Sammy Godin was cooling his heels in the penalty box, the Detroit Olympics ran in two goals to turn back the Orange shirts, 3 to 1.

WNBO to Broadcast High School Clash

WNBO, of Washington, Pa., has made arrangements to broadcast the W. P. I. A. L. championship football game between Redstone and Monessen high schools in that city tomorrow afternoon.

The play-by-play account of the battle will be broadcast from College Field, home of Wash-Jeff College and the scene of the contest. The kickoff will be at 2 o'clock.

GYM MEET TODAY

North Side Youth Center For Army Against Navy

When the football teams of the Army and Navy meet in their big charity number at the Yankee Stadium, New York, tomorrow afternoon, a Pittsburgh man will be playing his final game for West Point. He is Cadet Paul G. Miller, star center of the Army eleven, son of Mrs. Harry C. Miller, of the North Side. His father died three months ago.

CADET PAUL G. MILLER

This strapping young soldier, now 24, who stands 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 195 pounds, received his early football training in the interscholastic ranks of this district. He played tackle on the Oliver High School team here for two years before he was graduated from that institution in 1925.

Later he attended Swavley Preparatory School, entering West Point in 1927. He won his appointment to the United States Military Academy in a competitive examination open to the National Guardsmen of the country, for which he was eligible as a member of Battery F, the Pittsburgh division of the One Hundred Thirty-sixth Field Artillery, N. G. P.

It was at tackle, his old high school position, that Miller won a berth when he first made the Army team, but in 1929 he was shifted to center and he has played steadily at that post for two seasons. He is rated among the best centers in the country and one of the strongest factors in the Army's fine line, his work having been a feature of practically every game played by the Cadets.

Miller also is a member of the Army lacrosse team and sings baritone in the Cadets' glee club. He is in his senior year at West Point.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID CHALKY WILLIAMSON

By JESS CARVER.

Heads bowed in grief, friends, class and teammates of Guy M. (Chalky) Williamson, former Pitt quarterback star, paid final tribute to the famous son of Pitt at simple but impressive funeral services yesterday afternoon.

Williamson, one of Pitt's gridiron immortals, possibly the greatest kicker in the history of the institution; a fine baseball player, a gentleman, and a scholar, died Monday afternoon in Presbyterian Hospital, after having been confined there for the past 10 days.

The Samson Funeral Home, on Neville street, was crowded to the doors as services opened for the departed star. Former grid stars, coaches, and acquaintances from various walks of life gathered to render a final tribute to the popular Williamson.

The services were in charge of the Church of Christ Science First Reader Schell, of the Clyde Street Christian Science Church, read the ceremony. The body was taken to Homewood Cemetery.

OFFICIALS DINE

Amid scenes of more or less intensive festivity, in which a toastmaster or master of ceremonies had little or no chance, members of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Eastern Intercollegiate Referees' Association held their annual banquet last night at the Keystone A. C.

A. W. McMillan was in charge of festivities. A. W. put in a fine party, and was ably aided by his assistant, Earl Cavanaugh. The party, as far as Mac and Earl was concerned, was a huge success.

J. L. Marks, head master at Kiski, was the one and only advertised speaker, although Dan Daugherty, Dex Very and the Right Honorable John Egan, dean of the Duquesne University Law School; Al Slack and Leo McGlinchy also gave brief (?) talks.

It became evident very early that the meeting was more or less of a closed affair, so some of the invited guests took the hint and pulled stakes early, waiting long enough to hear Jim Marks render his latest poem.

Bob Cadigan, of Syracuse, a veteran official, succeeded to the president's chair, replacing Cal Bolster. Aubrey McFarland was chosen vice president and Dex Very, secretary.

Russell Goodwin, famous as an all-America quarterback at Wash-Jeff, and Red Gannon, veteran baseball and football arbiter, applied for membership in the organization and were accepted.

SCRIBES TO NAME STARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Although both major leagues have discontinued the official selection of a most valuable player each year, the custom will be kept up by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. The association voted to name committees of experts each year to ballot on the most valuable performers in each big league.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Tonight is the night we find out whether or not Jackie Rodgers, local Negro featherweight knockout star, suffered any permanent injury from his eye hurts in his bout with Johnny Erickson, of New York, at Hickey Park, Millvale, several months ago, forcing him to undergo an operation. For a time it was feared that Jackie's fighting days were at an end, but he has been training again for a few weeks and feels equal to the task of taking on Soldier Dombrowski, blond Detroit southpaw, in the main bout of Promoter Apples Meyers' weekly show in the Moose Temple. Dombrowski has shown here once, winning by a technical knockout over Joey Thomas at the Etna Elks' Club when Thomas was so badly cut about the eyes that he could not continue.

Soldier Dombrowski

Jackie Rodgers

Johnny Sill, a stablemate of Dombrowski, and highly touted, meets Mose Butch, Oakland southpaw bantamweight, in the semi-final tonight. Gus Britner, of Charleroi, and Paul Balint, of the North Side, box the second bout, and Joe Perry, brother of Jack Perry, the former welterweight mittster, and Richard Greene, of Homestead, are the opener, at 8:30.

Between Rounds

K. O. Caristner, of Akron, who meets George Panka, of Homestead, in the main bout of 10 rounds in the benefit show to be promoted at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, arrived in town yesterday with two sparring partners, one of them big Tiny Jim Herman, and put in a strenuous workout session in the Motor Square gym in the afternoon. He will train there again today and tomorrow and Sunday. Meanwhile, Panka is doing his drilling in the Homewood A. C. gymnasium. Interest in the show is growing and is being reflected in the daily increase in the advance orders for tickets.

Both the Battling Battaline-Kid Chocolate bout for the featherweight title in Madison Square Garden, New York, and the Young Stribling-Tuffy Griffiths battle in Chicago's Stadium tonight will be broadcast by radio. Chocolate and Stribling rate the favorites to win.

The proposed Buck McTiernan-Tommy Freeman bout at Motor Square Garden, Thanksgiving afternoon, now is very doubtful of consummation. The new welterweight champion is recovering from an attack of illness and plans to take a trip to California after the Christmas holidays and not when there. He has matches in the making with Sammy Jackson and Andy Divoli out there.

Tommy Phillips and Patsy Brannigan will stage their next amateur boxing show in Washington Hall, North side, Tuesday night, December 23, with seven bouts on the card.

COCHRAN SETS RECORD

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe last night opened up his billiards affairs with Welker Cochran, winning the second block of their 18.1 balkline match, 200 to 88, in nine innings. Cochran bettered his own world record in the afternoon match, requiring only one inning to win, 200 to 15. His recognized high run, 196, was made in championship competition.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Ralph Greenleaf scored his third straight victory in the world pocket billiard championship tournament here last night, defeating Pasquale Natalie, 125 to 41, in six innings.

MAJESTICS SET FOR TILT WITH OLYMPICS

By TOM BIRKS.

With the Majestics and the Mt. Kenyon Olympics primed for the titular battle that carries along with it the championship of the Independent Gridiron Conference, the only thing remaining to make Sunday the greatest day in local sandlot history is for the weather man to be a good sport.

Fans all over the district are speculating on who will win, and it is going to take four hectic periods of hard battling to decide just where the first sandlot title ever determined in Western Pennsylvania will rest.

The teams both tapered off in practice sessions yesterday. Last evening Art Rooney sent the Majestics through a strenuous workout, and Bill Sullivan and Fred Iverson put their charges through special plays for the game.

Bill Sullivan will start Barnes at quarter, and there is no doubt that Art Rooney will have Brother Jimmy calling the signals for the Green and White.

Rooney states that Glenn and Levey will be in the game, and, probably for the first time this season, in the starting lineup. Iverson is confident that this is the Tubers' year. Boots Klinzing has been the only ailing member of the squad, but the game with West View found the popular South Side boy in good shape.

The game will be called at 2:30 and will be handled by four of the best officials in the district. If the Majestics win, they must play Ambridge in the final game, but if the Olympics win, the conference race is over for the season.

The Rox Rangers will play the Rox All-Stars in a benefit football game for Frank Berilla, Ranger player, who suffered a broken leg early in the season. Berilla only recently was released from the hospital.

pay was cut from $25,000 to $20,000, but as he had a big season from the viewpoint of effectiveness Dazzy contends that the cut should be restored and he will ask for $25,000 again. Not only that, but he may ask for a long-term contract.

Vance turned up at the big league meetings in New York this week and expressed the hope that the magnates would favor the proposal to lift the ban on trick pitching, which has been barred since 1920. "If the batters had to be on the lookout for baseballs to take unexpected breaks they would not set themselves so firmly at the plate," Dazzy argues, "and they would also choke their bats and cut down their swings. The ball would be hit with less force, and consequently home runs would be decreased."

Jimmy DeHart

JIMMY DEHART, Panther grid captain back in 1919 and one of only two athletes who ever won letters in four sports at Pitt, wasn't long out of a football coaching job after it was announced that he would be succeeded at Duke University in Durham, N. C., next year by Wallace Wade, present Alabama mentor. Jimmy's old post at Washington and Lee in Lexington, Va., has been given back to him, and he will return there as head coach next fall. He succeeds Gene Oberst, who resigned recently after two unsuccessful seasons. After getting his first coaching experience at Georgia, DeHart directed football affairs at Washington and Lee from 1922 to 1925 inclusive. In 1925 he exchanged coaching jobs with another former Pitt star, Pat Herron, DeHart taking Herron's place at Duke and Herron going to Washington and Lee. At the Lexington school Herron gave way to Oberst in 1929 after three years, but DeHart has continued at Duke until now, a stay of five seasons. The length of Jimmy's new contract with the Generals has not been announced. The change means a return by Washington and Lee to the Warner system, installed there first by DeHart and Herron.

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The West Penn League, operating under a "blanket sanction," issued by the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. and which permits that circuit to use professional players in amateur competition when it suits its purpose, again has proved itself more powerful that the governing body in the recent controversy that resulted in the withdrawal of the Y. M. H. A. as a member of the league.

Sam Klateman.

Suspended by the league officials for using Sammy Klateman, ruled ineligible by the powers-that-be in the circuit, but who was given a clean bill of health by the eligibility committee of the Allegheny Mountain Association, the Y. M. H. A. was forced to resign.

IGNORES CHALLENGE

Followers of amateur basketball are up in arms over the failure of the Allegheny Mountain Association to accept an open challenge issued by the West Penn League authorities. This league, for reasons best known to its leaders, finds it necessary to ask the parent body for a "blanket sanction," a coined expression adopted by the Allegheny Mountain Association, yet it does not hesitate to flaunt the A. A. U. rulings.

Klateman was ruled eligible by the A. A. U. and was granted an amateur card, but apparently the West Penn League does not take its orders from that body when they do not coincide with the rules of the league. It's a case of "what we do is none of your business," and the A. A. U., it seems, is satisfied to let it go at that.

This situation just about sizes up amateur conditions in the Greater Pittsburgh district. Here's a bona fide amateur organization, backed by a million-dollar institution, forced to play in a circuit composed of eight clubs, six of which are teams that from all appearances are operated for what they can make out of the game. Yet these clubs, such as the Knickers, Penn Five, South Side Falcons, Ray Schneiders, W. U. Hoyles and North Side Buicks, all independent fives, are permitted to dictate the policies of amateur basketball without fear of being reprimanded by the A. A. U.

OWN LEAGUE FAILED

Leaders of organizations affiliated with the A. A. U. alone are responsible for the present situation. Two years ago an effort was made to form an institutional league, composed entirely of organizations of bona fide amateur origin, but after the league got off to a good start, internal differences brought about a disruption. When leaders in local institutions cannot get along themselves they cannot expect much assistance from the A. A. U.

The Goldenson Vanities will be out to score their twenty-eighth straight victory tonight when they open their home season against the Blairsville Co-Hi Girls at St. John's Hall, South Side. Another important independent game is that between the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House and the Tarentum Elks on the I. K. S. floor.

CHARLEROI BEATEN

Charleroi's Merchants were nosed out by the J. J. Mieles, 28 to 26, in a close County League battle last night at Columbus Temple, Twyman and Wunderlich doing the starring. The Ray Schneiders tripped the W. U. Hoyles, 17-16, and the Penn Five defeated the North Side Buicks, 34-26, in a couple of West Penn loop encounters.

Faith Chapel held its Pittsburgh Senior Church League lead by walloping Mt. Troy Presbyterian, 52-19, while in the Pittsburgh Junior Church League, Faith Chapel Juniors bumped First Presbyterian Juniors, 34-14. Manchester Community won over the Pittsburghers, 36-23, in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, while Homewood Presbyterian knocked off North Boroughs, 24-16, in the Wagner Institutional League.

In a scholastic exhibition, Ford City High swamped Arnold, 42-5. Y. M. H. A. beat Fintex, 37-29; P. A. A. topped Smithfield Street Church, 37-17; Avalon Rangers beat Brushton Y Reserves, 23-15, and the Metros copped from Bellevue Y, 20-17, in independent contests.

BUTLER PAULISTS BOW

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 12.—The Hubbard, O., five nosed out the Butler Paulists here last night in a close game, 22-20. Lefevre led the Butler club, while Arnaut and Shrader were outstanding for the visitors.

MANGINO STOPPED

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEDORE TRADED

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The Toronto club, of the International League, has traded Fred Bedore to the Columbus American Association club for Johnny Morrbeart.

Basketball Rules Quiz

PLAY NO. 11.

Hackett, of Columbia, has been awarded the ball on an out-of-bounds play against Harvard. Just as Hackett is in the act of passing to a teammate, he steps on the line, but not into the court.

What is the correct ruling?

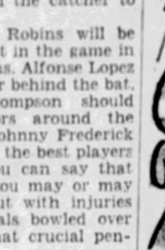
ANSWER.

Although the Columbia player technically is regarded as being out-of-bounds when touching the line on such a play, he is considered as having carried the ball onto the floor. The pass is called back and the ball is given to an opponent.

ROBBIE LANDS A CARIDEO IN FRESCO

BY CHARLES J. DOYLE

For the want of a Carideo the pennant was lost, is a nursery rhyme Uncle Robbie sings with much feeling these cold days, but your uncle seems to have landed a Carideo who may lead the new Robins out of the wilderness and to a pennant in the next National League campaign.



Glenn Wright

A natural leader and general like Fresco Thompson long has been needed on the Flatbush club and it was a happy day for Robbie when he reached over into the Baker Bowl for this infield jewel. Thompson may have a few peers at the plate and there may be one or two second-sackers who will outfield him, but there is none in the game who will outsmart Fresco.

Glenn Wright, former Pirate and a smart performer, tried hard to sway the flag to Brooklyn, but his single-handed efforts could not quite put over the big affair. But Glenn will have the highly intelligent Thompson at his side next year, and, by the way, there are two diamond performers of the collegiate stripe who give lie to Rogers Hornsby's interesting "crack" to the effect that college players are "dumb."

Walter Schmidt, one of the smartest catchers the game has known for many a year, once said that he could win a flag with four top-line performers provided the star quartet be made up of a shortstop, a second baseman, a centerfielder and a catcher. Schmidt contended that flags were won or lost according to the degree of strength displayed on a straight line from the catcher to the centerfield.

Well, the new Robins will be just about the best in the game in these four positions. Alfonse Lopez is a wonder worker behind the bat. Wright and Thompson should have no superiors around the middle bag and Johnny Frederick in center is one of the best players in the sport. You can say that again, Johnny, you may or may not recall, was out with injuries when the Cardinals bowled over the Dodgers in that crucial pennant series.

Chillysauce

Mike Donlin and Johnny Evers, two of the most colorful players baseball has produced, were bemoaning the new encroachments of baseball as they surveyed the winter meetings in New York.

"Guess you remember how you Cubs would pay the bus driver extra to drive us over the roughest streets in Chicago on the way to the hotel after a game," queried Mike.

"It's different now," mused Evers sorrowfully. "They're beginning to get like tissue paper. Have you seen the little nets they put across the box to protect the shins of the batting-practice pitcher?"

Locals Win, Lose In Buffalo Bouts

BUFFALO, Dec. 12.—(AP.)—The final and semi-final rounds of the inter-city amateur boxing tournament were staged here last night with the following results:

118-pound class—Joe Janowski, Buffalo, defeated John De Palco, Toronto, three rounds, decision; Joey Kushner, Cleveland, defeated John Magy, Pittsburgh, three rounds, decision. Final—Kushner defeated Janowski, three rounds, decision.

which boxing has been shoved into the background by wrestling, with Benny Franklin, former boxing promoter, competing against John Contos in staging the mat shows . . . . They put on wrestling programs on successive nights this week, with both drawing well . . . . If you doubt that boxing is in bad shape in certain spots about the country, how about a charity show that drew only $300 at Marietta, O., recently, while another, at Lorain, O., with Joe Lohman, who has met many of the leading heavyweights, attracted a similar small gross?

Ted Sandwina, the heavyweight boxer managed by Ike Dorgan, of New York, had the late Theodore Roosevelt as his Godfather, and, when he was a baby, John Ringling, the circus man, tried to adopt him from his parents, who were performers . . . His mother is internationally famous as the "strongest woman in the world," her specialty being to lift 20 men on an iron rail balanced on her neck . . . Another feat is to permit an automobile bearing six persons to pass over her body . . . Ted was born in Sioux City, Ia., and was reared in the background of the circus tents . . . It was not until his parents went to Europe to perform that he became interested in boxing . . . At the age of 16, he engaged Max Schmeling, now the heavyweight champion, to act as one of his sparring partners . . . Max at that time was an amateur fledgling in Berlin.

Sandwina, who is of German-Jewish-American extraction, boasts 38 knockout victories in 55 bouts, his opponents, among others, including Phil Scott and Roland Todd . . . His next start will be against Stanley Poreda, of Jersey City, at the St. Nicholas arena in New York next Tuesday night, and he wants to show in Pittsburgh at an early date.—HARRY KECK.

Decline Im Rail Shares Causes Fluctuations in List After Early Advance

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The stock market seemed uncertainly today, trying to find a trend between counteracting periods of strength in the industrials and utilities and heaviness in the oils and rails.

The list opened with considerable weakness, as shorts, impressed with the equanimity with which the news of the closing of a New York bank was received, hurriedly began to cover. The initial rally, however, was unimportant and Wall Street, as a whole, seemed to be awaiting some definite indication of the course of business before making any important commitments.

A technical rally of some proportions developed, but before midday some of the gains had been pared, almost dragged the list below the previous close.

Another upturn, wider than the first, was followed by pressure and heaviness in the oils and rails. Commission house buying and covering of shorts, however, still seemed to be in progress, and the general list, with the exception of the oils, showed a firmer tone.

Several substantial orders for railroad equipment were reported, and efforts of the steel industry to stabilize prices seem to be meeting with better success than in similar endeavors. Cotton has purchased the lowest prices in 15 years. Silver bullion had a further drop, recording a new all time low at 32¼ cents an ounce.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent, then rose to 2½, the first time it has gone above 2 per cent since September 16. The speculative demand for funds remains light, however, and the change in the rate was without appreciable influence on the market.

The Federal Reserve condition statement showed that the system is working to keep money easy. Despite increased requirements, however, there was an increase of $41,000,000 in currency in circulation, $25,000,000 in bankers acceptances and $15,000,000 in government securities. The New York banks, however, sold bonds and purchased governments.

Developments in the rails indicate progress toward consolidation. As expected, the Baltimore & Ohio purchased the Chicago and Alton from the auction block.

Cotton Seed Oil Output Increases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Cotton seed crushed during the four-month period, August 1 to November 30, was announced by the Census Bureau today as having totaled 2,456,938 tons, compared with 2,290,171 tons for the corresponding period a year ago, and cotton seed on hand at mills November 30 totaled 1,082,518 tons, compared with 1,162,673 tons a year ago.

Cotton seed products manufactured during the four-month period and on hand November 30, were: Crude oil produced, 742,620,740 pounds, compared with 705,913,030, and on hand 114,594,978 pounds, compared with 123,485,159; Refined oil produced, 576,568,469 pounds, compared with 532,099,651, and on hand 350,260,359 pounds, compared with 326,867,857.

Big Bear Reported Looking for Rally

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Bernard E. Smith, who has been the recognized leader of the "bear crowd" on the New York Stock Exchange for some time, retired substantial short lines of U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric and General Motors today, it was reported. Mr. Smith was in the opinion that the express market and predicted a technical rally in the near future.

Chicago's Leaders Braver Than Those of New York

By B. C. FORBES

CHICAGO Dec. 12.—First impressions received here are that Chicago is distinctly less doleful financially and businesswise than New York. Several Chicagoans have remarked exactly as visitors from the West have remarked that they found New York recently so depressed that they were glad to get home.

Mr. Forbes

All of which must not be interpreted as meaning that Chicago is flooded with sunshine. It does mean, however, that leading citizens here are exhibiting more courage and faith than are most of our New York magnates.

"When we desire to ascertain the true strength of a building we look first to the foundation because we know that when the basic structure is strong and sound the building itself is also very apt to be strong and sound and—safe.

"And so it seem to me when considering the country's business structure we should look to the foundation. To my mind it is fundamentally sound and strong. True, it has received a rather severe jolt, but it has withstood that shaking up vigorously because the basic structure of American industry was and is and will continue to be sound.

"I am of the opinion that we have now passed through, and have behind us, the worst phases of the depression. The future, I think, will see a steady, healthy upturn in business which, while not being sudden or phenomenal, will, nevertheless, be all the more sound, stable and permanent. In short, I am an optimist, and cannot but feel conservatively optimistic about the business future of our country."

JOHN J. O'Brien, president of H. M. Byllesby & Co., who control vast utility properties, including Standard Gas and Electric, tells me:

"Standard's total kilowatt output for the 10 months ended October 31st was 1.9 per cent ahead of last year. We have not let any men go nor have we cut any salaries nor reduced our forces in any way. This year our budget calls for an expenditure of $74,000,000.

"Things have begun to pick up a little. Our managers all over the country have sent in their estimates of next year's earnings and the consensus of their judgment is that we shall have an increase of four and a half million."

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

Connie Gets Unexpected Sympathy From Kitty

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

On the eve of her marriage to handsome Jim Tracey, vivacious Connie Calvert, rich society girl, receives a letter which causes her to leave her palatial home in Connecticut on a mysterious automobile drive to New York. Jim sees her. Connie stops at a cheap restaurant on the West Side and waits for someone. The letter threatens to expose Connie. A man approaches Connie and introduces himself as Duke Garson. He tells Connie her late father was married twice and that she has a half-sister, Kitty, living in poverty among gangsters. Connie asks to meet her. When she does, Kitty tries to blackmail her. Kitty and Garson tell Connie that they want $100,000 from her. She says she will not give it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

Connie's defiance—her decisive refusal to surrender money under pressure—brought a sudden freezing expression on Duke Garson's face. Kitty, too, lost all mobility of countenance. Their faces became mask-like; frigidly, ominously, they retired behind blank expressions. Connie was not used to such people—a queer feeling, akin to fright, chilled her at their sudden stillness. She had come against a stone wall.

And tomorrow was her wedding day. It was well enough for her to be stubborn and stand upon her rights as she saw them, but, in this tense silence her imagination became active and sickened at the thought of the vindictive revenge they could so easily take. They could disgrace and degrade her—they could blast the serenity of a mother's life.

Garson Wants Money

Mentally she saw all the scandal of the newspapers—the prostration of her mother, the indelible brand of shameful scandal stamped upon her father's name. With bloodless cruelty they could disfigure her whole social existence. . .

And they would do it, too! Those impassive faces did not have that stony remoteness for nothing. Tiger people! Under the table Connie's hands were clinched. She was hanging on to her nerves and she realized unless she completely controlled herself she might easily veer toward panic. All of her life she had felt herself to be strong and firm-minded, but this was an attack for which she was not prepared. They had the advantage—all the advantage. They struck at her dignity of life.

Lastly, she thought of Jim Tracy. Poor Jim—the blight of it would fasten upon his name and follow him throughout his career!

"I can't see why you should want to hurt me," she said, with sudden wistfulness, to Kitty. "You know you've caught me off balance; it's unfair."

"Unfair! That's rich."

"But it is unfair." Connie insisted. "I've never done you any harm in my life, yet you threaten to throw mud all over my mother and the man I'm going to marry and me because of something I was not responsible for."

Thinks of Mother

"I tell you I haven't got that much money!" Connie declared, passionately. "We're not millionaires!"

"You can get it," Garson informed her.

"Where—how?"

"It's quite simple," he said. "I suppose a bank handles your mother's financial affairs. You could sell a few bonds out of the safe deposit box or put a mortgage on the Calvert estate. If you don't know how to go about it I'll advise you myself."

"But don't you see I couldn't do that without telling my mother the whole story."

"That's up to you," Garson said, coldly. "I suppose if everybody in your circle knew about this they would sympathize with you, but my sympathy goes entirely to Kitty. You've had all the breaks and now it's up to you to take the bad ones without whining."

Connie felt herself driven, step by step, into a corner. No matter which way she turned, they had the better of her. If she had stood alone she could have fought with more force, but the gentle face of her mother kept rising before her eyes. No amount of money on earth was worth the jagged hurt these people could inflict.

"If I get the money . . ." Her voice faltered. "If I get the money . . . will you leave me alone?"

She saw, as through a mist, her sister's face smiling at her, enjoying her misery.

"The minute you put the dough in my hand," Kitty Calvert said, "you'll never hear a whisper about this again. I'm not a double-crosser myself, neither is Duke. When you do this we'll drop out of the picture entirely."

Unexpected Comfort

"I'm to be married tomorrow! Can't you see it's impossible for me to do anything so quickly?"

"I don't think the marriage had better come off tomorrow—unless you can get the money before the ceremony," Garson said, judically. "Once you're married your husband might put on the clamps. "I'm afraid, Miss Calvert, we'll have to be brutal with you. Here's our last word: either you put the cash in our hands before the ceremony or we'll bust the story wide open all over your territory. We'll file suit and give the news hot to the papers. I think Kitty and the camera boys would have a good time up there in Connecticut. Of course, if you care to postpone the wedding for a few days while you're raising the money, I think we would be reasonable—for a short time only."

Connie's breath was coming rapidly. "You demand the impossible of me."

"Oh, go ahead and postpone your wedding two or three days," Kitty said, impatiently. "That will give you time to raise the money. No use going through all this agony. Why don't you show some sense and do what Duke tells you without all this monkey business?"

"How can I postpone the wedding?" Connie asked, miserably. "You simply don't understand, you just spring on me like—like a couple of wolves—"

Her eyes, uncontrollable, filled with tears. In another instant she felt she would be sobbing. It was all so terrible . . .

Then, unexpectedly, a hand stole across the table and touched her lightly, comforting.

"Ah, buck up, Kid. I don't want to jazz up your whole life—after all, we're sisters, ain't we?"

DAILY TRUE STORY 'Rosa'

"It's great," Al Peyton declared.

Con Jerrold grinned, happily.

Al Peyton was a fairly successful producer, leaning to musical things. To hear him approve was sweeter music to Con Jerrold's ears than any of the music he had composed for this operetta, "Rosa."

"That's swell, Al. I had a hunch you would like it. When can I hope for a production?"

"That's the trouble, Con."

"What's the trouble? Have you gone broke and stopped producing?"

"Not at all."

"You told me you liked my stuff, asked me to turn my idea of 'Rosa' into an operetta—you hear the thing, you say it is great, and then you refuse to produce it."

"Sorry."

"Not much nourishment in that for me. I've put in all my time and spent what little I had saved, and now—look here, Al, just what is the trouble?"

Con stared at his friend in amazement.

"Good lord, Al, that's the best song in the thing! It is the best song I ever did—and it is the theme around which the operetta develops."

"I know all that, Con—but you'll have to change it, drop it a half octave lower, perhaps."

"Then the lower registers would be suitable only for a contralto."

"But as it is, who can sing it?"

"Who? Plenty of good singers. Don't you know of any? You know hundreds of sopranos, and good ones."

"I know I do, Con."

"And you don't know one who could sing it?"

"One."

"I thought so!"

"Jenny Lind!"

Continues Work

"I'm telling you that 'Rosa' is a great song, but it is one that can't be sung, can't be put over. Write a new song for it and your operetta has more than a good chance to make a hit."

"Tough," he muttered. "World full of girls with soprano voices and I had to go and write something they say can't be put over."

Con was reminded that the world was full of girls with soprano voices by the laughter that floated up from across the street. Groups of young ladies from Minerva College were sauntering along. Con closed his windows and went over to his piano. The room seemed too stuffy.

He opened his windows again. Then he went to work in earnest on a new "Rosa." He worked until his nerves jangled, but couldn't strike anything that appealed to him.

The same thing resulted the next day and the next.

Finally he began to play his original Rosa song again. He believed it would be an inspiration. He might do the same theme over some way, get it down to where Al wanted it.

His window was open, a breeze fluttered the curtain. Con worked away at the piano, not hearing his door open.

"Da monk?" he heard someone say.

It made him nervous, so that his hands crashed a discord as he wheeled to see who had spoken.

"What?" he asked, sharply, eying with displeasure a black-haired girl in a gaudy costume that bespoke Italy.

"Monk? Wind? What wind? What monk? How did you get in here"

"Please—a meester, I loosa da monk—he hear-ade moosik, he climba-oop, he come in da wind."

Girl Sings

"Oh, the window. Are you trying to say that you lost a monkey and he came in my window?"

"Sure—da monk com-a in da wind." She gave him a genial smile and began to look around the room.

"No monkey came in here, Miss."

"Nice-a moosik," the girl said, leaning over and humming some of the notes. Con turned and stared at her.

"You read music?"

"So easy—"

"Sing it."

He began to play.

The girl did not sing the words. Evidently she could not read well nor rapidly enough in English. But she sang "Tra-la-la, tra-la-la" and followed the air perfectly.

Con played on, more excited than ever. He came to the difficult portion. The girl followed it easily. At the end of the song Con leaped up and put his hand on the girl's shoulder. Her black eyes flashed as she drew away from him.

"Girl," Con cried, "who are you? Where did you learn to sing?"

"Rosa," she said.

"No kidding, tell me who you are? You saw the name 'Rosa' on the music. Tell me your real name."

"Rosa Bianco. I learn to sing in Italy—on my home, Milano—I like to sing."

"I wish you could speak good English—say, suppose you tell me who you are and what you do? I might get some work for you, nice pay."

"I do tell-a, Rosa Bianco. I no need job, make moocha de mon with Padre, da organ moosik, da monk! Why you want-a me sing?"

"Listen, this is part of an operetta—you know—on the stage. If you could speak good English I could make you plenty of money—look here, I can get away with it if you will learn it—on the stage—sing, lots of money—understand?"

"Non—stage? Pardee keel-a me, I go on stage."

"Da monk—I lose-a. Help me find'a da monk."

"He didn't come in here; forget the monkey. I'll buy your old man—excuse me, your father—Padre—see? I buy him nice monkey."

The girl stepped over to the piano and started to hum again.

"Play-a heem once," she pleaded.

Con played his song again. The girl proceeded to sing. She went through with it, every word. Con had never heard such singing. He told her so.

"I am glad you liked it, Mr. Jerrold—my singing, I mean. It is really a wonderful song."

Con stared at the girl.

"So you speak English? What was the idea of coming in here and talking like—"

There was a knock on the door and then it opened. A tall, good looking girl, decidedly athletic of build, strode in.

"What's the matter, Emily? Is he getting fresh with you?" she demanded.

"Did you lose a monk, too? What's the big idea?" Con asked her.

"No, Mr. Jerrold has been very nice to me," the girl answered her.

Operetta Success

"I'm afraid we went too far, making you do this," the big girl rattled on. "Down below I thought I heard you scream." She eyed Con suspiciously.

"She was singing, and beautifully. Now if you will tell the idea of all this I'll be eternally grateful because this girl is going to sing the title role in my new operetta," Con declared, earnestly.

"It is a part of my initiation into our sorority, Mr. Jerrold. My name is Emily Rose Swaine. I was told to dress and talk like an immigrant Italian girl, come up here and demand a lost monkey. I just had to do it—"

"Great—wonderful! I want you to go down and sing this for Mr. Peyton—please."

Miss Swaine promised.

Al Peyton was surprised and pleased.

He put Miss Swaine into the operetta and she was a big success.

Miss Swaine was surprise and pleased.

Finally, Con Jerrold asked her to marry him. This was at the close of the long run of the operetta. Miss Swaine agreed.

Winnie

Yesterday we asked readers to send in letters suggesting how to solve the Unemployment Problem.

Although the complete returns will not be in for several weeks, we are pleased to print, today, the first letter. It was written by little Winnie Winterbottom, age 9. If a little 9-year-old girl can help solve the nation's problems, why can't you, and you, and you? Winnie's letter (which has been turned over and over to the authorities) follows:

Dear Mr. Editor Man:

Why the heck not solve the unemployment problem by pitting President Hoover to appoint investigating committees to investigate investigating committees?

Property Guards

Representative Musmanno's Bill for Protection of Industry Is at Least Move In Right Direction.

Representative M. A. Musmanno outlined in an address before the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, at Harrisburg yesterday, a bill which he intends to introduce in the Legislature for the protection of industrial property.

The measure creates a decidedly favorable impression. Whether it is the best that can be devised is a question that cannot be answered at this time. It may be that other members of the Legislature will have ideas that will be improvements on some of the features of the Musmanno bill.

It renders it much more difficult for such crimes as the Berkowski killing to be committed.

It does not permit the sovereign power of the state to pass into the hands of corporation hirelings answerable only to the corporations hiring them, as is the situation under the coal and iron police system.

Musmanno's bill merely authorizes the corporation's property guards to make arrests on the corporation's premises for offenses committed on the premises, and to protect payroll funds in transit.

The principles on which the measure is based should have everyone's support.

Upper Allegheny River Towns Are Making a Mistake In Opposing the Youngstown Canal Route.

It is too bad that just as things were looking rosy for the proposed canal to connect the Ohio River with Lake Erie, by way of Youngstown, business interests of the upper Allegheny River should have come forward with a protest against the project.

They protest because, they say, a canal to connect the Great Lakes with the Ohio River could be constructed more cheaply by way of the Allegheny River and French Creek.

L. H. Gavin, secretary of the Oil City Chamber of Commerce, says he cannot understand why Pittsburgh should favor a route that would be beneficial to Youngstown, our most active competitor in the iron and steel industry.

No doubt if other things were equal Pittsburgh would be inclined to favor the Allegheny River route. But other things are not equal.

One of the most important things to be considered is the amount of traffic that would be offered the canal. There can be no doubt whatever that the volume of business to be obtained from the highly industrialized Beaver and Mahoning valleys would be far in excess of that to be obtained from the upper Allegheny.

The protest is ill-advised.

Apple Sellers On the Streets Are of Various Types, and All Have Claims On Our Patronage.

The plan to help the unemployed by permitting them to sell apples on the streets, free of license tax, seems to be succeeding. There is an apple seller now on every important street corner downtown, and there appears to be good demand for their wares.

The plan, however, presents difficulties to the public.

You decide to buy some apples, and the question comes up, from whom shall you buy them?

On one corner is a pleasant-faced Negro, whom you would like to help as a reward for being so good-natured.

But just across the street is an elderly white man whose clothes suggest he belongs to the "white collar" class. You sympathize with him, too.

But wouldn't it be better to spend your money with the man on the opposite corner whose grim countenance, shabby suit and silent preoccupation indicate he needs cheering up?

Then there is the young fellow who is calling his wares so briskly. He should be encouraged for trying so hard.

And how about that woman down the street?

What a pity we cannot buy from all of them!

Election of Unknown Soldier to Membership In American Legion Does Not Call for Harsh Words.

A surprisingly hot controversy has arisen over the action of a Wilkinsburg post of the American Legion in electing the Unknown Soldier to membership.

Since the Unknown Soldier belongs to the nation, interest in the matter is by no means confined to the Legion.

The action of the Wilkinsburg post has been denounced in the Legion itself as "sacrilegious and impossible." But there is scarcely justification for harsh words.

Of course, if the thing is to be considered coldly and logically, without any consideration of sentiment, the procedure was foolish.

But if the sentiment that entered into the matter is considered—the desire of the post to pay honor to their lost comrade and through him to all the "buddies" that laid down their lives in the war—it was not foolish, but—well, rather touching.

Police Court Inquiry

District Attorney Park Will Find Many Things Worthy of His Attention In Magistrates' Records.

District Attorney Park has been questioning Magistrate Rothenberg, of the Center Avenue Police Court, and examining his records because a liquor case that Rothenberg is said to have referred to the grand jury seems to have been dropped before it reached that body.

The case in question is but one of many calling for grand jury action that have been disposed of by the magistrates through unlawful usurpation of power.

If District Attorney Park should care to make a thorough inquiry into the matter he could find in nearly all the police courts records of disorderly conduct or disorderly house cases in which there was prima facie evidence of bootlegging, gambling and commercial vice—cases which should have been held for the grand jury, but in which the defendants were discharged or dismissed with fines.

AIRSHIP DEVELOPMENT

By Archibald Henderson

A brief survey of the progress of dirigible development in very recent years indicates a great field for the intensive display of inventive science. Everything points to the belief that the United States should be the leader in this great and growing industry, now looming up as so indispensable in both peace and war.

In peace times the dirigible enjoys two immense advantages over the airplane—the largest measure of comfort in travel and the greatest cruising radius. Its advantages in war time have not been so clearly demonstrated. Not all the ultimate advantages have as yet been fully demonstrated.

But no detailed argument is needed to show that the dirigible will prove an extremely valuable tool for national defense. As the eyes of the Army and Navy, dirigibles can maintain a constant surveillance of enemy movements far beyond the range attainable by airplanes.

Serious accidents and disasters in the earlier stages of this country's interest in airship construction retarded its progress.

Notable were the depressing effect of the collapse of the British R-38, with the loss of a number of American lives, among others, and the Shenandoah disaster. The impression grew that the dirigible was uncertain and hazardous; that the margin of failure and wreckage was far too great. The enormous cost of the dirigible was a big factor in the situation, as well as the life hazards. No government cares to embark upon huge campaigns of expenditure in the construction of machines which have only a very brief and precarious existence.

This government has been actively interested in the subject of airship development. When the two small commercial models built in Germany after the war were confiscated, development there came to a complete standstill.

For several years following the armistice, Great Britain, saddled with a great load of war debt, eliminated dirigible development from their program. The airships turned over to France, Italy and Japan, following the close of the war, were unsuccessful in stimulating further interest in their control, study and development.

A faith in the future of the rigid airship and intervention to uphold the development of the Zeppelin industry in Germany marked the foresight of the American government, and in particular the American Navy.

Our acquisition of the German built Los Angeles enabled the Zeppelin Company to go forward with its work, resulting in the construction of the Graf Zeppelin. Great Britain at last began to wake up to the importance of this neglected industry, and has now definitely embarked upon an important and gradually enlarging program.

It has been estimated that for every $100 spent on airplanes in this country, only $1 has been spent on airships. The public awakening of interest in the rigid airship, following the magnificent achievements of the Graf Zeppelin, bids fair to cause the beginning, soon, toward closing up this great gap.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I nominate for the pet pew in the Hall of Fame—WALTER WINCHELL. Not because Walt's the smartest sassbox that ever broadcast Broadway but solely because he's had the nerve to get frank and frivolous about BLESSED EVENTS.

Hitherto, anyone that mentioned that Mrs. Jones was Going to Have a Baby was bounced into the dog-house, pronto! And as for speaking it right out loud in public print—tsh' tsh! tsh! Of course, if the lady was something splendid or remote like a duchess, the paper might announce, in very small print, that she was "enceinte." Even that wasn't considered quite nice. But as long as the editor said it in a foreign language that no one could understand, he got by. But only in a paper. In private life, really refined people didn't even say it in French. A lifted eyebrow—a complacant waggle of the dewlap—might be permitted. Otherwise you dasn't peek or peep.

Nor was the onlooker alone under this ban. The expectant mother, herself, was supposed to act just as if nothing was happening. Remember the novels of 1905? G'wan—stop pretending—you do, too. Remember how the beautiful Rosamond hid the little garments in her sewing basket and only confessed their purpose to her husband, "with mantling blushes," when she practically had to? Believe me, this sort of play-acting was a considerable strain on a sensible young woman—but if she didn't do it she was considered vulgar. Now, since blessed events got themselves syndicated, she can obey her natural impulses and whoop over the morning phone—

"Gee, Gert, ain't it great—I'm going to have a baby! Joe's tickled pink. Com-on over tonight—le's celebrate!"

Which may not sound so scenario but it's a whole lot better for the human race. And it's all due to Mr. Winchell's smart idea of making Blessed Events front page news. Maybe he'll claim he had noble motives in so doing—such as freeing the human mind from the shackles of superstition, etc. But if he pulls that line, don't you believe him. I'm a columnist myself and I can give you the low down. He wasn't trying to do favors to Homo Sap. He was just out looking for copy—and he took a chance which the rest of us dasn't tackle. And got by with it—lucky dog! Be that as it may, Walt like Columbus did the world a whale of a favor without ever intending to. For Junior and Sister need no longer grow up believing that Baby Brother came from a cabbage (as if they ever did!) and Mrs. Jones doesn't need to sneak down back alleys just because biology has her in its grip.

And I'm telling you, it's a grand and noble relief. Walt himself doesn't know what a relief. He didn't have to have a baby in the Mantling Blush period the way I did. And even if he did beat the rest of us to a scoop I'm for him. Give the Big Boy a hand! And may Allah grant that Bugs Baer and Ted Cook and Amos 'n' Andy get onto it, if Walt ever starts to have twins!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Dreams of Mine

Brave hope and faith are dreams of mine
That help to make each day to shine
And shape this life like life divine.

They lend me courage, strength and cheer,
These dreams which daily grow more dear.
By force of splendid dreams like these
Columbus sailed uncharted seas
And Ptolemy shaped far dynasties.

Less mighty, but as potent still
To bend events to meet their will,
My dreams would fashion good from ill.

My faith and hope well up anew
To help make all brave dreams come true!

Text for Today Let no man glory in men. For all things are yours; whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's. —I Corinthians, iii:21, 22, 2[illegible]

THINK IT OVER

Drawn by Hal Coffman.

If you are an average man and an average drinker, you say that you can take liquor or leave it alone.

Probably you can—now. Certainly you cannot—later.

The time will come when you must increase your daily poison ration, and keep on increasing it, until you reach the sodden state of the poor derelict in this picture, slumped in his chair, oblivious to the world.

The only way to let liquor alone is to let it alone, and to keep on letting it alone until you forget about it.

There is no other way, and if you think there is, then you should have your head examined.

Liquor breeds the craving for liquor. The more you drink the more you crave. That has been the fact since Noah went on his jag after he landed from the ark, and it will remain a fact as long as there is booze to drink and fools to drink it.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when telephone calls were free in hotels? Hard-as-nails ladies affecting a dream uncertainty. Ewing Galloway, the photographer, still clings to his coon-skin cap. Somehow I lose all interest in actresses who endorse face lotions.

Bob Davis, a Carson City, Nevada, boy, who made good in the city. Those boys in roadsters with police dogs who call papa "The Governor." You can't see the grandeur of Pierre's from the outside. Anna May Wong's eyes have the brightness of rain-washed berries.

Fifth avenue used to be "the" address, but upper East Side cross streets are now swankier. Something sad, dry and musty about a linen store. And clerks seem characters out of Dickens. Funny how an invalid often dominates an entire household of healthy people. Sam Bernard, Jr.

The Sixth avenue watch repairer who sits at his work bench wearing a red fez. Does anyone else miss the black cat in the flower shop window near the Hippodrome? Either I have run into a flock of gnats or there are spots before my eyes. What became of ring-worms?

A shop dealing in nursery wallpaper. Otto Kahn always looks as successful as the Blue Train. Chief Long Lance, the Indian writer, who wears embroidered evening shirts. Joe Schanz, the tailor. Those fugitive lines of poetry that gallop through one's head. Alice, Ziegfeld's famous telephone girl.

Our lives are spent among friends who cannot tell the color of our eyes. A sportily dressed man eating an apple along the street. Charles Francis Coe and Gene Tunney have become pals. Those all night tap dancing schools in the old brownstone fronts.

The former Edith Gould is no longer plump. Believe I'll spend my next vacation in the Ozarks. And fatten up on salt pork, lye hominy and pot likker. Go barefoot, pick chiggers and chase razor-backs. Something the matter today. The old fashioned simples, I suspect!

Speaking of Joe Schanz. He has long been one of the tailors to bloods of the town. One evening recently in a London theater he occupied a box. In the audience he exchanged greetings with many American friends who were customers. At the intermission they held a conference and drifted back to their seats with their coat collars yanked up in the back and their clothes otherwise out of kilter. They then pointed to their misfits and at Mr. Schanz, who departed blushing furiously.

* * *

My current enthusiasm for correctly fitting clothes are those featured by Clifton Webb, the actor, who knows how to wear them.

* * *

And for the style conscious there are those white evening vests, fitting like a banana skin, and born by Aubrey Eads. There are no gaps or wrinkles between buttons and the whole effect has the fixedness of something in steel. The secret is the front is a "dummy"—the weskit being fastened up in the back.

America has the best dressed men of any country I ever visited but has never learned the precise angle for a silk hat. The silk-hatted New Yorker always looks as though he will begin walking sideways and burst out singing "While strolling through the park" almost any minute. The British can make the high hat as natural as the Apache does his long-visored cap.

Too, there is a certain jauntiness to the way a French boulevardier wears a muffler. He seems to give it a quick, careless fling, like a fellow flipping away a cigaret end, but the result is always dashing. Ben Ali Haggin, the painter, is the only American I ever saw who possessed this gift.

Richard Le Gallienne returned to America recently for some household effects in his home in the Catskills to take to Paris, where in a seven-flights-up attic he expects to spend the rest of his poetical dreaming days. In a corner of the Catskill house was a hornet's nest. The poet plugged up the exit with mud, had the whole thing carefully crated and shipped to Paris marked: "One hornet's nest." All of which may be a poetical sentimentality or a joke on the French customs inspectors. Le Gallienne did not say.

After a lifetime of effort, my own sartorial miracles are not likely to crash into frescoes for posterity. Yet I had moments. There was the time I came home from business college with each sleeve decorated with a row of buttons up to the elbow and pockets slashed at a 45 degree angle. Hannibal, my father's venerable colored porter, gazed at the outfit and ventured: "Cap'n, you sho' is powerfully buttoned!"

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Does this favorite receive the best and most expensive clothing and is he or she the one most often presented to strangers?

You are as responsible for the being of one as of the other.

In his unfavorable features and ways he may not resemble you, but what he is has come to him through some generation of his parents.

Perhaps physical ailment or affliction has disfigured him.

As a parent, you should be the last to discriminate against him.

Give your unattractive child a fair deal.

Guided by your sympathy, fairness and helpfulness, he may be the one who eventually will bring you the most honor and credit.

But he needs your help—give it.

He needs it more than your physically favored child.
